Supreme Court Rejects Defense Pleas Of Seven Spies on Trial for Lives

DENIES WRITS AND RIGHT TO CIVIL HEARING

CASE RESUMED

Military Proceedings Against Spies Continue in Boarded-Up Room.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The seven alleged Nazi saboteurs lost today in their effort to escape jurisdiction of President Roosevelt's military commission by appeal to the supreme court

Chief Justice Stone announced that the court denied the prisoners' motion to file writs of habeas corpus

Only seven of the eight accused saboteurs sought the writ.

The court's opinion found:

"1. That the charges preferred against petitioners on which they are being tried by a military commission appointed by the order of the president on July 2, 1942, allege an offense or offenses which the president is authorized to order tried before a military commission.

"2. That the military commission was lawfully constituted.

"3. That petitioners are held in lawful custody, for trial before the military commission, and have not shown cause for being discharged by writ of habeas corpus."

The opinion then said:

"The motions for leave to file petitions for writ of habeas corpus are denied.

"The orders of the district court are affirmed The mandates are directed to issue forthwith."

The court's announcement explained:

"The court has fully considered the questions raised in these cases and thoroughly argued at the bar,

Drive to Gather Up All Farm Scrap To Start Monday

A campaign to salvage every available piece of scrap metal or rubber from Richland county's rural communities will get under way Monday. Carl L Stough, county salvage chairman, announced today.

The drive will be conducted in connection with a nation-wide War Production board appeal for scrap materials. After the rural districts have been covered, the campaigners will move into the cities in their search for good rubber and metals.

Five trucks manned by men who will be paid by the federal government will start Monday morning to canvass every rural section of the county. House-to-

'Ghost Man' Captured In Attic Nest

Admits Murder as Police Find Him Half-Starved In 'Haunted' House.

(By International News Service)

DENVER—The fantastic story of a "ghost man" who hid in the tiny spider-infested attic of a North Denver home for nine months after he killed its elderly owner was written into police annals today as one of the most amazing cases on record.

"It is the most bizarre tale of a man reverted to the primitive which I have ever heard," declared Detective Capt. James E Childers, who revealed that the tall, half-starved murder suspect confessed that he beat Philip Peters, 73, to death last Oct. 17 and then huddled in a "spider's nest" high in the rafters of the victim's home.

The "ghost man," clad in rags tied together with rope, was dragged from his cobwebbed cubby-hole late yesterday after neighbors reported to police that "ghosts were walking" inside the house.

He identified himself as Matthew Cornish, 59, a former advertising salesman in Tonawanda, N. Y., who became a derelict wanderer after he lost his job and money.

Cornish was barefooted, grimy and wasted down to a mere 80 pounds. His thin stature, lacking just one inch of reaching six feet, gave arresting officers the impression that "he looked like a walking ghost."

Capt. Childers said Cornish admitted he murdered Peters when the old man surprised him while he was on a "regular raid" on the family ice box. He confessed beating Peters to death during a terrific struggle.

Cornish broke into the Peters home several weeks before the crime, discovered the cubby and decided it would make an ideal spot to "hole up for the winter." For some time he watched the movements of Peters and made Absentee Ballots Indicate Light Primary Vote.

Despite the new Ohio election set-up which makes it easy for servicemen to vote by absentee ballot, only 16 requests for primary ballots had been received today by the Richland county election board, the lightest pre-primary vote in recent years.

Clerk Philip Wolfe of the board said about half of the applications for ballots were from men in the armed forces, indicating little interest in the primary among voters far from home.

The deadline for applying to the election board for absentee ballots is a week from today, and applications are expected to shown an increase during the next week, Wolfe said. The primary is Aug. 11.

TEACHER 'BIDS' HIT SCHOOLS

Rural Situation Becomes More Acute; Instructors Leave For Higher Pay Jobs.

The scarcity of teachers has become so acute in the Mansfield area that village and rural boards of education are bidding for their services and asking neighboring boards to help them find applicants, Supt. Boyd Robinson of Richland county schools said today.

After today, however, teachers must stay with the schools with which they have signed contracts. A state law makes it illegal for them to leave one school for another after Aug. 1 unless the board which hired them first is willing to release them.

Robinson said a number of cases have come to his attention in which teachers have given up previous contracts when another board offered them more money. In other cases teachers have applied with several boards and held out for the best offer, he said.

He said one woman teacher hired last week at Butler went to another county when a board there offered her $50 more a year.

Johnsville Woman Loses $349 To Pair Engaged In 'Con Game'

"All that glitters is not gold," a passage from an old poem, had a true meaning today for a farm woman living near Johnsville.

The woman, Mrs. Ida Wirrick, informed police late yesterday that she had been fleeced out of $349 by a colored woman she had observed "finding" $1,700 in currency on a North Main street sidewalk.

After giving the supposed finder her $349 as evidence of good faith after being promised half of the spoils if its owner could not be found, Mrs. Wirrick summoned police aid after a futile three-hour vigil and a fruitless search for a somewhat mythical "Mr. Howard"

Mrs. Wirrick told Patrolmen Russel Miles and Roeliff Hout that at about 11:30 a. m. while standing in front of the Kresge store, she observed the colored woman in the act of picking up the money. Another white woman, purportedly a passerby, joined in the discussion when the "finder" asked Mrs. Wirrick if she "wanted in on it."

Mrs. Wirrick, according to her report to police, drew $320 she had on deposit in the Richland Trust company, and added $29 she carried in her purse. The colored woman then explained she would give the "find" into the safe-keeping of a "Mr. Howard" in the Farmers Bank building. Mrs. Wirrick was instructed to call on that mythical man in a short time to receive her "divvy."

Following a fruitless search of six floors of the building, and unable to find "Mr. Howard" she

BOLT HITS BARN

Leaves $3,500 Damage After Early Morning Storm.

During an early morning storm which doused Mansfield with more than a half inch of rain today, lightning started two fires in the New London area, destroying a barn valued at $3,500 and a straw stack on another farm. Rainfall measured .60 of an inch in Mansfield.

The barn was on the Verlin Runkle farm four miles east of New London. It contained large amounts of new hay and wheat, Runkle said. Volunteer firemen saved the barn on the Albert Carpenter farm three miles north of New London when lightning set fire to a straw stack near the building. Both fires were shortly after 2 a. m.

Lightning that accompanied the storm in the Mansfield area was not severe and no damage was reported. More thundershowers were forecast for today and tonight.

'Tarzan' Thumbs Ride In Shorts; It Cost Him $5

Emulating Tarzan, or September Morn in the moonlight, cost an East Third street man $5 and costs when arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of intoxication.

According to Patrolman Carl Beard, the offender was attired only in much-abbreviated shorts while thumbing rides at Diamond street and Park avenue east at 11:45 p. m. Remainder of his clothing was found stowed behind shrubbery beside the courthouse.

Wearied with it all, and not inclined to discuss the escapade at all when questioned by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, the near-nudist merely mumbled:

"Guilty"—

And in a disgusted listless undertone, added:

"As hell."

COUNTY NEAR $587,000 WAR BOND QUOTA

Eliot Certain $27,000 Needed For July Goal Will Be Reached Today.

GETS AUGUST ORDER

Next Month's Figure Same as That For July; Contest Being Arranged.

Richland county will meet its quota of $587,000 in the sale of war savings bonds and stamps for July, reports filed with the Richland County War Savings committee showed today

Early tabulations revealed a total of $560,000 sold in stamps and bonds so far and Paul M Eliot, chairman of the Richland county committee, indicated that the remaining $27,000 would undoubtedly be obtained by the time reports were completed by the sales agencies.

The August quota for the county will be the same as that in July, Eliot said, although he added that "it would no doubt be harder to meet" since the July quota had the advantage of two special war-bond-and-stamp drives waged by the Mansfield Retail Merchants association.

Sales on the three days set apart in the "Retailers For Victory" drives reached $60,382, exceeding by $12,000 the quota of $48,000 established by the association. A number of large purchases of the G-bond series by organizations also boosted the July sales, Eliot said.

The county chairman also expressed the belief that the "recently formed Victory committee headed by H. G Brunner and C. F. Ackerman would be of great assistance in helping meet the next quota." This committee was set up through the Federal Reserve bank and the area chairman is A. C. Coney, vice president of the National City bank in Cleveland.

FINAL DAY

Internal Revenue Collector Takes Over Car Stamp Sale.

The internal revenue department warned motorists today that it will begin to crack down on car owners who have failed to purchase and display their federal use tax stamps.

Today is the last day the stamps will be available at post-offices. Beginning Saturday, they must be purchased from the office of the collector of internal revenue.

Motorists who fail to buy the stamps and affix them to their cars are subject to a $25 fine or 30 days in prison, or both.

Nazi Advance Surges Ahead In Caucasus

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(AP)—Armored trains of the Red army rolled into the shell-torn steppes of the Don bend today, bringing up fresh reinforcements for the defenders who already had reported checking the German onslaught west of Stalingrad. The new troops were rushed straightway into the battle which has raged for a week in the great loop of the Don, front dispatches said.

(By Associated Press)

Rallying Soviet armies, fighting under the slogan "Die, but don't retreat," threw back the Germans in some sectors of the Don river bend 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad today, but in the Caucasus the situation grew ever more critical.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters declared that German, Rumanian and Slovak troops driving toward the Caucasus oil fields had already thrust spearheads 112 miles below the Don, and the Russians acknowledged German advances in this theater.

The Nazi command said that fighting was in progress for the town of Salsk, a junction on the last major rail line from the Caucasus to Stalingrad 100 miles southeast of Rostov, and that Axis troops had swept across the Don on a 150-mile front.

German speed troops and advanced infantry divisions were pictured by the Nazi command as closely pursuing the Russians and preventing further retreat at several points by outstripping the "disorganized fugitives."

In the battle of the Don river bend, above Stalingrad, the Red armies reported they had turned a novel "flying wedge" attack of massed German infantry, walled by tanks, into a death trap for the Nazis.

Dispatches to Red Star said Russian troops also wiped out three battalions of German infantry disguised in Soviet army uniforms. Red Star said the deception was quickly frustrated when it was discovered that white tabs, not worn by the Russians, had been placed on the collars.

"Southwest of Kletskaya, our troops repelled enemy attacks and in some sectors pressed the enemy back," a bulletin from Red army headquarters said.

Kletskaya, 80 miles above Stalingrad, has been the scene of a giant see-saw battle for the past eight days.

While the situation along the Don river bend visibly improved, the Soviet command acknowledged that Marshal Fedor von Bock's armies had scored new gains in the critical struggle in the northern Caucasus.

"South and southeast of Bataisk (15 miles below Rostov), bloody fighting is in progress against attacking mechanized units," a Red army communique said.

"In spite of the fact that the resistance of our troops has increased, the Germans have advanced in some sectors."

German field headquarters asserted that Nazi troops had crossed the lower Don on a 150-mile front, and German military dispatches reported that Nazi columns lunging into the Caucasus had captured the important rail

HINT: Arrival of U. S. Flying Officers Seen as Air War Move

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The arrival in London of four more high-ranking air corps officials to assume command and staff duties in the European theater of operations was interpreted here today as a further step toward full participation of U. S. air forces in European bombing raids.

Announcement of the appointment and arrival of the officers came from Britain, where U. S. Army planes have already taken a limited part in gigantic RAF actions over the continent.

Those taking the new posts were:

Maj. Gen. W. H. Frank, 56, commanding general, U. S. Army air forces, air service corps.

These men will fill the major posts of the air staffs under the command of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commanding general of U. S. forces in the European theater. Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker recently was designated

VICTORS: Allied Airmen Bag 9 Jap Planes, Fire Transport

(By Associated Press)

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —In the biggest outburst of aerial warfare in the Australian area since the Coral sea battle, Allied airmen destroyed nine of 49 Japanese raiders over Port Darwin yesterday, set another enemy transport aflame off New Guinea, shot up her destroyer escort and downed one enemy fighter and possibly another in that area.

Allied fighters tore into the attacking force of 27 heavy bombers and 22 escorting Zero fighters over Port Darwin, knocking down seven of the bombers and two fighters at a cost of only one defending plane. The Japanese formations were completely broken up in this Allied performance, described by a headquarters communique as a piece of "brilliant interception."

The big raid upon the northern port came in the afternoon after a light, ineffective morning attack.

In other thrusts at the commonwealth, nine high-flying Japanese bombers made the first attack of the war on Port Hedland, small freight port southwest of Broome, in western Australia, causing slight damage and one casualty, and made a futile, single-plane night attack on Horn island, in the Torres strait.

SOVIETS RALLY AGAINST FOE AT DON RIVER BEND

junction of Kushchevka, 45 miles south of Rostov.

Nazi military quarters said German vanguards were making quick headway in two big columns south of Rostov and beyond Proletarskaya, and declared that according to information reaching Berlin the Soviet retreat at several points became a disorderly flight.

The Germans conceded, however, that the Russians continued to offer "tenacious resistance" in the hilly region around Kalach, in the Don river bend, 50 miles west of Stalingrad.

Confirmation still was lacking for a Vichy (French) radio broadcast report yesterday that German troops from the Crimea had crossed the narraw Kerch strait to the Caucasus mainland and were imperilling the Russians below Bataisk.

Front-line dispatches said the Nazi experiment with tank-walled "flying wedge" attacks ended in disaster for the invaders.

Soviet gunners held their fire as the phalanx advanced, then wrecked the forward tank wall with volley after volley of point-blank fire and left the Nazi infantry exposed. Russian troops dashed into the breach, dispatches said, killing many Germans and routing the others in hand-to-hand fighting.

Red Star said the invaders fell back over steppes littered with bodies and smashed machines.

"In one sector alone during the last few days, 120 enemy tanks have been destroyed and more than 2,000 enemy officers and men killed," Soviet headquarters reported.

On the lower Don, midway between Stalingrad and Rostov, the Soviet command reported that "our troops continued to fight with the object of annihilating the enemy group which crossed the river" near Tsimlyansk.

In this sector, the Russians said, Red army tanks plouged into a German formation and killed 1,500.

During the night, German raiders attacked eight towns in the English industrial Midlands, stirred two quick alarms in London, and bombed East Anglia and the south coast. The Berlin radio said a strong Nazi bomber formation again raided Birmingham.

No bombs fell in London, but the capital's secret new anti-aircraft guns went into action, and a heavy ack-ack shell hit a house and exploded, killing a man and injuring a woman.

Eight Nazi planes were reported shot down over the island kingdom, while bad weather apparently kept the RAF's big bombers from carrying on their offensive against the reich.

By daylight, RAF fighters streaked across the channel toward Boulogne to resume raids on the French "invasion" coast.

In the battle of Egypt, the Italian high command said a British attack south of El Alamein, 75 miles west of Alexandria, was repulsed. British imperial headquarters said light British patrols harassed the stalled Axis columns on all sectors of the 40-mile desert front, but there were no large-scale operations.

Silent On Reported Second Front Appeal

LONDON —(INS)— Official circles made no comment today on the assertion by the Daily Express political specialist that Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky had urged immediate opening of a second front in Europe.

Maisky emphasized the seriousness of the military situation on the Don river front and called for speedy aid during his appearance before the closed session of the house of commons, the Express declared.

British Score In Channel Raids

LONDON —(AP)— British light naval forces engaged in three successful skirmishes with German boats, planes and shore guns in the North sea and English channel overnight, the admiralty announced today.

One British patrol early this morning intercepted five German trawlers off Ijmuiden, the Netherlands, setting fire to one and scoring repeated hits on others in a 10-minute fight, the admiralty said.

Fifty minutes later the same German force was attacked by another British patrol which inflicted further damage in another brief action, broken off at daybreak.

Litvinov Sees Hull On Russian Crisis

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Russian Ambassador Maxim Litvinov today was believed to have emphasized action by the United Nations to ease the pressure of Germany's drive in southern Russia.

Litvinov conferred with Hull on the general war situation for nearly half an hour after the United States and Russia agreed to extend until Aug. 6, 1943, an agreement covering commercial relations between the two countries.

The conference was another event in a series of happenings in London and Washington which are viewed by military observers as concrete evidence that the "zero" hour is approaching for opening of a second front by the United Nations. Litvinov yesterday had a long conference with President Roosevelt at the White House.

COUNTY NEAR ITS BOND QUOTA

will be given by a county contest, part of a state-wide plan calling for the appointment of volunteer war bond workers in each of Ohio's 88 counties.

The plan provides that volunteer workers having the outstanding record of accomplishment in each county will be designated each month as the "War Bond Champion of the Month" and will be given a special certificate of award for his or her work.

The Richland county committee will select its worker in the near future, Eliot said, and will determine the outstanding worker at the end of each month. This latter selection will be based upon a general contribution of time, energy and ability in the promotion of local War Bond sales.

Winners will be cited by the presentation of medals, war bonds and other awards each month according to Eliot. Nine silver medals and nine $25 war bonds will be provided by The Standard Oil company of Ohio for presentation to the ranking workers among the county champions in each of the state's nine regions.

Local county winners will compete with winners from Ashland, Crawford, Erie, Huron, Knox, Marion, Morrow and Wyandot counties for one of the special honor medals and a $25 war bond to be awarded the regional winner in each of Ohio's nine districts. District winners will be designated as members of the "Supreme War Bond Champion Council of the Month."

An additional part of the new plan provides for the selection of one county in the state each month as the "Pacemaker of the Month." The honor county will be awarded a special citation and an honor flag now being especially designed for this purpose. The awards also will be provided by The Standard Oil company which is sponsoring the entire recognition plan in the interest of the war savings program.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Life on plantations in colonial times is described in two new books in the Children's department at the Mansfield Public Library. One is a story of older girls while the other is intended to be used as a supplementary text in school. Since the latter is in story form it will interest readers in the upper elementary grades.

INDIGO TREASURE, by Frances Rogers—Polly Lucas attended a boarding school in winter but in the summer she was at home on a Carolina plantation. There her playmate was a young Negro house servant named Vanilla and sometimes she could visit Pro and Con, the Tradd twins on the neighboring plantation. Polly's sister Eliza managed the Lucas plantation and planted indigo to be used for dye. There are many adventures during the summer including the time Polly managed the plantation herself.

SOUTHERN COLONIAL DAYS, by Marcelle Laval Duffe—Richard Wakefield lived in Virginia on a tobacco plantation. When his tutor's term was up Richard wished to become an explorer west of the mountains but his father wished him to go to England to school. This small book is illustrated carefully and describes all phases of colonial plantation life.

RATIONING HITS CORN-LIKKER

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—(INS)—The original corn-likker manufacturers in their scattered mountain stills, seemed to be able to get out a sizeable amount even with revenooers after them constantly, but it took a war, and the accompanying shortages to really seriously damage the lucrative business.

First real problem was posed when sugar became scarce—and the government made no provision for still operators getting their usual share.

Latest, however, has been the priorities on vital metals, including copper, the mainstay of the distillery business. Tennessee revenue department agents discovered one distiller using a copper radiator which apparently had been salvaged from an elegant limousine of the 1915 or 1916 vintage.

U. S. Men, Machines Stream to Britain

AT A UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCE FIGHTER STATION, Somewhere In Great Britain —(U.P.)— Men and machines for the American army "second front" air corps are streaming into Great Britain, it may be said today, and more and more American airdromes are being established.

As Maj. Cass Hough, of Detroit and Plymouth, Mich., pre-war manager of the Daisy Air Rifle company, put it:

"If we keep coming over we'll have to start a second front in order to get enough airdromes for our ships."

The first fighter pilots to arrive in Britain are at this big air base, eager to go.

With them is a ground crew with armorers and mechanics, already thoroughly organized and equipped with the latest British guns, ready to go into action in less than one minute against glider or parachutist troops in event of a German invasion.

HOLD CAPTAIN

Nazis Sink Ship, Then Claim Skipper as War Prisoner.

(By Associated Press)

The first reported instance of the seizure by a German submarine of an American ship's captain as a prisoner of war was disclosed by the navy yesterday in announcing the sinking of another U. S. merchantman in the western Atlantic.

With the loss also of the Brazilian freighter Tamandare, announced by the Brazilian government yesterday, the Associated Press unofficial tally of submarine sinkings of United and neutral nations' craft in the area rose to 404.

"You are a prisoner of war. I want you to come aboard. I am very sorry," survivors of the American vessel quoted an English-speaking U-boat commander as having said to the American as his ship was foundering in the South Atlantic on July 9.

"We'll treat him well. He'll be aboard only about 11 days," the commander replied to pleas of the 43 survivors to let their captain accompany them in lifeboats.

FISH SHORTAGE

It's Due to Lack of Boats; They're Out Fighting Submarines.

BOSTON—(INS)—Because the navy has commandeered much of the Boston fishing fleet to help fight the Axis submarine menace, a fish shortage has existed for some time, spokesmen for the industry declared today.

Disparaging Washington reports that increased sales of fish due to a shortage of meat in the east would result in a "premature shortage" of fish along the Atlantic seaboard, they said fish landings at the Boston pier already have dropped 50 per cent.

The drive is designed primarily to collect old tires and iron on farms, but every piece of rubber or metal will be acceptable, according to Stough.

Engineers Prove That Lightning Can Be Slowed

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Lightning, which under normal conditions would streak along a power line at the speed of 600 miles an hours, was slowed down recently by Westinghouse engineers to a speed of two miles an hour to demonstrate how a lightning arrested on a power line intercepts lightning bolts and detours them harmlessly into the ground.

Artificial lightning, produced by a machine, technical in design, and resembling a xylophone, was permitted to move slowly along the wire which had been constructed by engineers. When the lightning reached the arresters it was stopped completely and continued at normal speed only after passing it.

Arresters, much like safety valves, protect the nation's half million miles of power lines by detouring to earth each year about 300,000 lightning strokes, according to engineers.

a "WAAC," the feminine equivalent in the army.

The new naval service will include 1,000 commissioned officers and about 10,000 enlisted members. The corps will be shore-bound sailors and the law prohibits their being sent outside the country.

Reports from Wellesley grads are that potential "Waves" have drawn in "Miss Mac," a shipshape choice as director.

For one thing, Miss Mac, in addition to being scholarly, witty and human, is very good-looking. Of medium height, she wears her crisp dark hair clipped in loose curls about her head.

She was 36 when she became president of Wellesley. For the first three years, she was quite conservative. Then one day she sanctioned shorts instead of blooms for gym.

She went about the campus hatless—a bit ahead of fashion—and wearing a sweater and skirt. She liked low-back evening gowns and wore them well.

She has been dean of women at Centre college and at Oberlin. It was from the latter that she went in 1936 to Wellesley to become that college's second youngest president.

HOLD RITES FOR DEFENSE WORKER

SHELBY—The body of Oberton Dan Johnson, 34, former Shelby resident, who was accidently killed while working at a defense plant in Houston, Tex., earlier this week, was brought here for funeral services today from the Barkdull funeral home.

Rev. Carl A. Grimm of the Shelby Evangelical and Reformed church conducted the services. Burial was made in Oakland cemetery.

Johnson left Shelby about a year ago to go to Houston where he got a job in a defense plant. While welding Monday at the plant, a load of steel accidently fell on him, crushing him to death. He died instantly.

Surviving are the wife, Mildred, and a four-year-old daughter of Middletown, O.; three brothers, Raymond of Detroit, Linvell of Middletown and William of Shelby; also two sisters, Mrs. Golda Guy of Tennessee and Mrs. Mescel Logson of Kentucky.

SPIES' PLEAS REJECTED BY SUPREME COURT

and has reached its conclusion upon them.

"It now announces its decision and enters its judgment in each case, in advance of the preparation of a full opinion which necessarily will require a considerable period of time for its preparation and which, when prepared, will be filed with the clerk."

Meanwhile the military trial of the eight accused Nazi saboteurs had resumed for final argument this morning without waiting to hear the supreme court verdict.

Principals of both the prosecution and defense entered the boarded-in enclosure of the trial area in the justice building shortly before 10 a. m., Eastern War Time—two hours before the supreme court was scheduled to meet again on the appeal of seven of the suspects, who seek a civil court trial.

Attorney General Biddle of the prosecution and Captain William Hummell of defense counsel told reporters that they expected to begin final arguments of the secret military trial immediately and that there was no conflict of opinion about the propriety of proceeding without waiting for the supreme court.

The eight supreme court justices weighing the case—Justice Murphy disqualified himself because of his present service in the army—went into a two-hour conference immediately after two days of arguments had been completed yesterday and this circumstance led to the expectation of a speedy decision.

In adjourning the special term until today, however, the court made no announcement as to when its ruling would be issued.

Before the court were two questions, submitted in the prisoners' brief thus:

"1. May the petitioners (six of whom are enemy aliens) maintain this proceeding for a writ of habeas corpus?

"2. If so, are the petitioners unlawfully restrained of their liberty?"

The parenthetical phrase was that of the defense. They contended that the youngest prisoner, Herbert Hans Haupt, 22, was an American citizen; the prosecution disputed this, contending that he had joined the German army, in which case he would automatically forfeit his citizenship. An eighth prisoner, George John Dasch, did not seek the supreme court's intercession.

In other words, army officers carrying out their assignment from the president to defend the prisoners asked the supreme court to rule that men in the defendants' situation could seek justice in civil courts.

Once this question was decided against the prisoners the court would have nothing further to pass upon. But conceding the prisoners standing in the courts, the tribunal then would have to examine the legality of their military trial. If this was held improper, a writ of habeas corpus would be the vehicle for relief.

Cramer, heading the prosecution staff with Attorney General Biddle, was assigned to open the final argument before the military commission. The hearing of evidence was completed Tuesday.

The argument before the supreme court indicated the tenor of the prosecution and defense pleas behind the closed doors of the military commission in the justice department building.

The prosecution alleged that the men left this country for Germany with funds furnished by the Nazis—Haupt travelling on a German passport—attended a sabotage school there run by the army, embarked from L'Orient, France, on U-boats equipped with extensive paraphernalia and specific instructions for the destruction of important dams, factories and other installations here and plotted a two-year campaign of sabotage to further the Axis cause.

The defense claimed that the men, all former residents of this country, were loyal to the United States, that they attended the school and boarded the submarine as the only means of fleeing Germany, that they buried their explosives in the sand upon landing and did nothing to carry out any sabotage campaign, and that they were planning to report to the authorities.

Speed Conclusion of Case Against Pelley

INDIANAPOLIS —(INS)— Government prosecutors moved swiftly today toward the conclusion of their case against William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Fascistic silver shirt legion, who with two associates is accused of criminal sedition.

They said they expected to complete presentation of their evidence by the time federal court recesses at the end of the day.

The goateed, neatly clad Pelley has been the whole center of attention, both from the spectators and government attorneys, but his two aides are liable to similar heavy penalties if convicted.

They are Lawrence A. Brown, secretary of Pelley's fellowship press, which published his now discontinued magazine, the Galilean, and Agnes M. Henderson, secretary.

frequent raiding trips to the ice box for food whenever the aged man left his house.

"He lay in wait among the spiders and watched his victim like a spider himself," Childers said.

One night as he crept downstairs to steal food, Peters surprised him and a violent scuffle followed, Peters was struck over the head several times by a heavy object swung by his mysterious assailant.

Then, the detective added, Cornish returned to his hiding place and remained there, in a half-starved condition, until yesterday.

When captured, Cornish presented an unearthly appearance. His hair was long and unkempt. His body was covered with dust and cobwebs and he looked "frail enough to snap in two."

The Peters slaying had been an unsolved mystery since he was found lying on the floor of his living room, a shattered cane clutched in his hand. Broken furniture, shattered windows and splashes of blood throughout the house attested to the terrific battle which the old man had put up before he was killed.

Childers said Cornish had been in his tiny refuge even while police were downstairs investigating the murder.

bombers pounced on the destroyer-escorted Japanese transport 100 miles off Gona mission, Papua, and scored five direct hits, leaving the vessel spouting flames visible for 30 miles.

The transport, described by today's communique as a medium sized cargo vessel, was the fifth enemy ship damaged or sunk before the Japanese invaded the Papuan peninsula last week.

From all yesterday's operations three Allied planes were missing.

For the first time in several days Allied headquarters said there was no ground activity at Kokoda, inland village midway between Gona mission and the Allied base at Port Moresby.

Japs Lose 7 Planes In Hunan Attack

CHUNGKING —(INS)— The Japanese lost a total of seven planes in two attacks yesterday on the allied airdrome at Hengyang, Hunan province, United States army headquarters in China disclosed today.

Communique No. 26 issued by Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell said that four bombers had been shot down by American fliers in the first of two attempted attacks on Hengyang. The Japs attempted a second attack and lost three fighter planes. The bombers never reached Hengyang.

Report Japs Mass 400,000 Near Siberia

LONDON —(AP)— British military quarters declared today that Japan had massed nearly 400,000 troops in ancMhukuo opposite the troops in Manchukuo opposite the "there is little doubt they are planning to attack."

These quarters predicted that the Japanese would make at least three drives in an attempt to isolate the Siberian port of Valdivostok, which lies only 700 miles across the Sea of Japan from Tokyo.

"August and September are the best months for campaigning in that area," the source said, "and the Japanese inactivity in all other spheres except the north Pacific indicates Siberia is their objective for the last half of 1942."

HERE'S 'PAPER PLAN' FOR THE SECOND FRONT

But Militarists Recognize Many Obstacles to Big Commando 'Invasion.'

By BILL BONI
(Wide World Military Editor)

NEW YORK — Light, flicking, annoying jabs that land first here, then there, crossing up the foes' defenses—followed suddenly by a smashing body blow as his guard drops for a moment.

Thus you can picture a likely pattern for the large-scale diversionary attack which, most military experts agree, is all we can expect in the way of a second front in Europe this year.

The jabs are swift Commando raids, smash-and-run affairs striking now at Norway, now occupied France, again at Belgium or Holland. They keep the Germans guessing and the defense garrisons on the jump.

The body blow is a major Commando attack, far stronger than anything delivered so far and with the objective of winning a beachhead, an airfield and a port, and holding them as the main forces are brought in.

That is the picture on paper—powerful RAF fighter sweeps to knock out enemy airplane strength (the Germans get so many of these that a few more would not tip them off that anything unusual was in the wind);

Invasion barges, escorted by destroyers and motor torpedo boats and loaded with grim, hard-hitting Commandos, sliding up on some beach, wiping out gun emplacements, seizing the air field, getting control of the port (perhaps with the aid of the local citizenry);

Clouds of fighter planes weaving a protective canopy overhead as transport ships shuttle across the English channel with heavier guns, tanks, ammunition, fuel for the planes, and thousands more troops.

But that is the picture only on paper. In actual fact it is a problem that means full-time work for the best military minds in London and Washington. You need no more than a realist to see the difficulties that confront them:

1. For two years the Germans have built up their defenses along the western shore of the European continent. Where that shore is closest to England, those defenses are strongest. Where the defenses are weakest, they also are farthest removed from the threat of attack.

Also worth remembering is the fact that in September, 1940, when almost every factor was in his favor and Britain had little more than the RAF and the fleet for her defense, Hitler still did not risk an invasion.

2. Between Norway's North Cape and Southern France, the Germans now are believed to have some 30 divisions, probably all but 10 of them in France and the low countries, the most likely invasion targets. In Germany proper there must be additional thousands of troops in training or on furlough who could be rushed to any danger point.

Since the main purpose of any diversionary attack would be to force the Nazi high command to shift some of its divisions from Russia and thus ease the pressure on the Soviet armies, the Allied attack would have to be executed by 20 divisions, or 300,000 fighting men, at the very least.

Even across the narrowest portion of the channel—20 miles—that would entail a tremendous transportation task, at the risk of losing many of the ships for which we already are so hard-pressed.

3. The Nazi defenses are deep, and they are mobile. They have big guns, some fixed and some mobile, ranged along the coast from Den Helder in Holland probably as far as Cherbourg.

They have fixed machinegun posts in their first line of defense. They have fortified strong points—each railway yard, each highway junction—farther back, so devised that they can be a threat even to a force which has effected a break-through. They have highly mobile mechanized units on call, and extensive railway systems, notably in Holland and Belgium, for feeding troops and equipment to any threatened area in a hurry.

4. The Germans hold a long stretch of coastline. On paper it can be attacked at almost any point. In practice the range of operation will be limited by the effective range of fighter-plane screen, and since most RAF fighters were designed primarily for defense of the British Isles that range is limited to not much more than 250 miles.

5. Uppermost in the minds of the grand strategists must be the effect of any operation on the peoples of the occupied countries. An attack that fell short of its objective not only would have a tremendously depressing effect on the thousands now under the Nazi heel, but would expose them—especially if they cooperated to any degree with the landing force—to fearful reprisals at the Germans' hands. "Too little and too soon" can be just as damaging as "too little and too late."

6. Likely to block any immediate action is the fact that the nights in those areas are so short now. Between nightfall and daybreak there is little more than five hours of darkness, enough for invasion barges to cross the channel to France or the North sea to Belgium or Holland at only a very few points.

A likely place for such a landing? It might be one of the islands in the Dutch province of Zeeland—an island primarily because, once seized, it could be defended more easily against mechanized counterattack than any mainland holding.

The island of Walcheren could be such a site, with beaches suitable for barge landings, with a good harbor — Flushing — that could accommodate transport ships, with a good location opposite a portion of the English coast which abounds in estuaries, and probably with a number of air fields, since it is almost entirely flat.

Wherever the attack is made, it will be a costly one. But there is an old military axiom that the winning side will be the one which is possessed by, and retains, the driving urge to close with the enemy at bayonet length.

'Navy Recruiting Day' to Be Mansfield Event on Aug. 7

Friday, Aug. 7 has been designated as "Navy Recruiting Day" for the Mansfield area, Lieut. Ralph H. Dombey, northern Ohio district recruiting officer, announced today, and a special effort to recruit Mansfield and Richland county men for the navy will be made by a recruiting staff of six men from Great Lakes Navy Training station.

The Great Lakes seamen will arrive in Mansfield about 5 p. m., Aug. 6, in a mobile unit of a giant truck and trailer, and will make a tour of the city with police escort, Lieut. Dombey said.

At 8 p. m. on that day the Great Lakes men will present a Navy sound movie at Central Park, at which time a complete Navy library and dispensary in the trailer-truck-unit will be open for inspection by the public.

Plans are being made for a patriotic rally program to be held in connection with the Thursday night Navy movies. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer of First Lutheran church, chaplain of the Mansfield American Legion post, will be the principal speaker, having as his subject "The Importance of Recruiting." Mayor W. J. Locke also will speak.

All day Friday will be devoted to recruiting activity by the Great Lakes unit.

The mobile unit, known as the U. S. S. Recruiter, will be making a tour of northern Ohio cities, starting next Sunday at Elyria. It is completely equipped with a dispensary, library, sleeping quarters for six men and motion picture and a sound track.

With some 500 records collected here so far in the American Legion sponsored drive to gather old phonograph records, hopes for filling the quota of some 7,000 were low, officials said today.

Due to the activity of local record dealers most of the old records here have been collected and turned into the manufacturers, officials pointed out.

DIRECTOR OF DEFENSE AT GALION QUITS

J. E. Woodward Submits His Resignation at Meeting Thursday Night.

GALION — Executive Director of the Galion Civil and Defense Council, J. E. Woodward presented his resignation when members of the council met at city hall Thursday night.

Woodward gave no reason for his resignation. No action will be taken on a successor until the council meets again next week.

It was announced that W. R. Widrig is acting in conjunction with the American Legion in the training of a class of 20 men who will act as instructors of air raid warden classes. Classes are held every Monday night in the local high school.

Woodward also heard reports of Merle D. Gow, chief of police, and director of the auxiliary police in which it was reported that patrolmen had completed a course with the exception of their first aid training. A basic first aid course will be begun Aug. 6 under the direction of Dr. R. M. Malone.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1942.

Too late to buy next winter's coal supply "early"—better buy it now.

Unheard remark: "Dad said I shouldn't drive faster than 40 miles an hour, so I'll keep it down to 35, just to be safe."

Other drives have come along so fast this summer that the "swat the fly" campaign has been relegated to health columns.

Russia Girds for Crucial Test

EVENTS of the next few days may disclose whether confidence or desperation inspired Josef Stalin to break months of silence by issuing an "order of the day" in which he called upon the armies of Russia to halt their retreat and stand firm against invading forces, "lest the country be overrun."

There was also the announcement that Russian reserve forces were being sent into battle on the Caucasian front, in an effort to stem the tide of Nazi advances toward Stalingrad and the rich oil fields of the Caucasus.

Military secrecy has been so successfully maintained in Russia that little is publicly known about that country's war strategy or reserve strength, although resistance thus far has been far stronger than the outside world had thought possible when Hitler's hordes first crossed the Soviet border.

The Stalin pronouncement also coincides with the speed-up of RAF air attacks on German cities and along the French coast and seems to mark an approach to more determined efforts on the part of the United Nations to take the offensive in western Europe and support Russia's attempt to stop the enemy march into the Caucasus and to begin regaining lost ground.

While Stalin warns against further retreat, it is well to remember that the Germans, if they are to win, must win quickly, whereas the Russians can continue to play for time, with constant lengthening of the precarious line which Hitler would be required to hold through another bitter winter.

The United States is now represented on 31 widely separated foreign battlefronts, all of which are vitally important in carrying on the war, but it should be kept in mind that outcome of fighting in Russia will be a large factor in determining the length of the war and the extent of effort that will be required to defeat Axis powers in other parts of the world.

Councilmen Anxious To Help

TO WHATEVER large or small extent partisan politics may sometimes influence attitude and acts of city councilmen, it will probably impress all Mansfielders at this time that it is the welfare of the city that demands first consideration and that partisan bias should be shelved for the duration.

Expression of those councilmen who could be reached yesterday for statements indicates recognition of this obvious fact and it may be safely assumed that complete accord will be reached in council support of all practicable efforts to advance Mansfield industrially and along lines designed to provide adequately for the needs of a growing city.

Even such a brief comment as was made by Mayor William J. Locke, "We'll go along with anything worthwhile," is all that could be desired in the way of assured co-operation, for naturally it will be only projects which, after careful consideration, meet the requirements for being adjudged "worth-while" that will be sanctioned as a part of the local program of progress.

That plans for Mansfield's future are much broader than the one phase of further industrial expansion, toward which principal attention is now being directed, is seen in the statement by Councilman Russell Porch, finance committee chairman: "Council must go much further than merely endorsing meritorious war industry programs. There is a tremendous financial obligation indicated in providing adequate water supply and extension of mains; sewage problems; repair of streets; police and fire protection, etc."

All of these things fit into the picture of a well balanced, progressive city, such as Mansfield has aspired to be—a good city in which to live, to conduct a business, to earn a livelihood and to rear a family, amid pleasant surroundings, congenial friends and in the enjoyment of customary urban conveniences and comforts.

Necessary attributes of a good city are sometimes lost sight of in a wild scramble for temporary rapid growth, as has been the sad experience of some Ohio cities in the past and as now seems likely to be repeated in others.

Co-operation that is now being assured the local war industry board in following the course of its announced purposes augurs well for development and successful outcome of a sound community program for Mansfield's industrial and general community betterment.

Accident Victims Die In Vain

CASUALTIES to the United States armed forces since Pearl Harbor have been 4,801 dead, 3,218 wounded and 36,124 missing—a total of 44,143. These figures are from the government.

Casualties to American workers since Pearl Harbor, through accidents, have been 30,000 dead and 2,500,000 wounded. These figures are from the National Safety Council.

The council offered the comparison as evidence that accidents help the Axis in draining America's manpower that is vital to victory.

The total American accident toll since Pearl Harbor has been 60,000 killed and approximately 5,500,000 wounded, the council said. Among the victims are thousands of skilled workers and key men in the nation's war program, who cannot be replaced.

"Casualties on the battlefront are a necessary sacrifice to perpetuate our freedom," said Ned H. Dearborn, executive vice-president of the council. "Casualties on the homefront, through accidents, are preventable and hinder the efforts of our fighting men by sabotaging the production of the weapons and materiel of war.

"Those who fall in battle die for a cause. Those struck down by accidents die in vain."

Observation: It's easier to "keep up with the Joneses" since charge accounts must be paid by the 10th.

With county fairs banned, even the larger pumpkins will have no more than intrinsic value.

Why Washington 'Brokers' Thrive

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

CAPITALIZING the war for individual profit is inexpressibly mean business, of course. Attorney General Francis Biddle very properly has minutely investigated suspected cases of it. Now congress has passed a law penalizing it severely.

Operating in Washington, there undoubtedly has been a class of brokers who professed the ability to get unduly fat bargains for seekers after government contracts.

Possibly some of them have been at the game for a long time, but it appears that Uncle Sam's present enormous wartime requirements have stimulated 'em in their activities and multiplied 'em numerically.

In the first place, if a broker collects pay from one of his customers for promised services that he can't perform, he's grafting on the customer, who hasn't any remedy for it, or he'd incriminate himself. Not that I think the greedy contract hunter is entitled to any sympathy.

Attorney General Biddle's investigation and another one by Chairman Carl Vinson of the representatives' naval affairs committee have strongly indicated a good many cases in which crooked contractors have employed crooked brokers and have had their money's worth from the latter in the form of mighty juicy contracts, and a good many other cases in which crooked contractors have been swindled by crooked brokers.

Many Need Help.

If such discoveries hadn't been made, it wouldn't have been necessary for congress to pass a law to put a stop to the system.

Now, I don't for a minute intend to suggest that the average contract applicant wants in excess of a fair return on his stuff. He may even consult a broker with no bad intention, but merely because he's inexperienced in Washington and believes he needs an old hand to advise him. If he gets a better deal that he'd expected, I presume he generally bears up under the shock with no particular lamentation.

Suppose, though, that a contractor, either by design or accident, closes a dicker on considerably favorable terms to himself.

A contractor and a broker combined can't dispose of a big order of goods to the government, at a fancy figure, without a bit of acquiescence on the part of the governmental boys who subscribe to it for Uncle Samuel.

Far be it from me to so much as hint that as many as one in 1,000,000 of our wartime contracting agents are otherwise than 100 per cent on the level.

What chance does one of 'em stand, in conference with a slick, sly broker, who could sell an imitation gold brick to the treasury department?

What the government needs, to stop grafting, isn't so much a law, to punish it after it's been perpetrated, as a lot of educational courses, for the benefit of its executive crew, to prevent it in its incipiency.

There are three groups:

1. The contractors.
2. The brokers.
3. The governmental guys.

I think I've given a pretty clean bill of health to the governmentalities, except as to intelligence.

I've said that the contractors are okey, on an average.

Brokers As Guides.

Now I propose to speak a word for the brokers.

Of the big ones I'm suspicious, as everybody is.

Many of 'em however, are perfectly well intentioned. The fact is that they're not brokers. They're guides around the capital.

Former Mansfielder Tells of Changed Attitude On Coast

HOW do people feel and act when war danger becomes real instead of being considered a highly remote possibility?

That question is well answered in excerpts from a letter just received from Edward B. Cappeller, former publisher of the Mansfield News, whose home has been in Los Angeles, Calif., for the past twenty years. He says:

"Here on the West Coast we have finally become war conscious. The public mind seems to have grasped now that a serious raid is not only possible but likely. This attitude of mind developed very slowly. The Pacific ocean doesn't seem as wide now as it once did.

"Then, too, we see on all sides something of the defense measures being made, and it dawns on us that someone, somewhere, is concerned about our safety. Now, instead of an occasional few in uniform, on all sides there is a constant stream of army and navy men. They are here a short time at training stations, move on and are replaced by others.

"The talk now is of WHEN the raids will come, not IF, and above all, one is impressed by the change of mental attitude.

"Awhile back we talked of skidooing to places of safety—the hills, Arizona, New Mexico—if danger threatened . . . but not now.

"Taking the place of that, has come a realization that there are things that cannot be run away from—and above all there has grown a grim determination to stand and to fight back, to put out fires and to give first aid when needed.

"More important still is the realism that we are going to protect our way of living, our freedom and our flag.

"But you don't see this change unless you look for it. There is no parade of braggadocio. I see it like the thing that came to the surface among the English people when the test came. They decided to stick it out 'if the island sinks.'

"Meanwhile we are going about our business in the usual way. Our minds are still pretty much on golf, motion pictures and the price of girdles."

Personal note: "If you see Rudolf Hartman tell him I'm most excited when (and if) I shoot a 69."

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, July 31, 1922.

Checks in payment of 4 per cent semi-annual dividend were mailed to preferred stockholders of Mansfield Sheet & Tin Plate company.

Rev. O. L. Kiplinger went to Trop, Pa., to start month of chautauqua work.

A. T. Thorne underwent operation at General hospital.

Albrecht Bros. clothing company leased room at 7 East Third street and planned to move store from 48 North Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cappeller and son William left on motor trip to Los Angeles, Calif., planning to spend the winter there.

T. A. Speer came from Cleveland to become manager of Mansfield Sheet Metal Products company.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Boals, Summit avenue.

TODAY IN HISTORY

John Ericsson, Swedish-American naval engineer, was born this date in 1803, at Langbanshyttan, Wermland, Sweden. During the Civil war, the navy department invited proposals for the construction of armored ships. Ericsson's design for the first armored turret ship was accepted and launched as the "Monitor" on Jan. 30, 1862. On March 9 she fought the celebrated action with the "Merrimac."

Timely Editorial

A Ray of Encouragement.

Only bureaucrats and patronage purveyors will withhold a cheer on hearing the news from the Congressional Economy committee. It set out to lop $1,301,075,000 from the federal budget; actually bettered that figure by nearly $13,000,000. More encouraging still, Senator Harry F. Byrd, who heads the pruners, says that "the possibilities for economies have been no more than scratched."

That remark, of course, conveys nothing to the taxpayers that isn't already painfully appreciated, but it is nice to know that somebody in Washington is trying to do something about scratching deeper. We are still encumbered with a topheavy array of prodigiously expensive governmental luxuries that have no more place in a war economy than barber poles do on a tank. —Detroit Free Press.

Expect Fierce Allied Air Scourge To Precede Promised Second Front

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

DISCLOSURE by British Air Marshal Harris that a great Anglo-American air-fleet is about to scourge the reich, city by city, signals one of the major developments of the war, but while we can expect much from it we shall do well not to jump to the conclusion that this is a quick solution of all our troubles.

One's first thought naturally is whether this aerial assault is likely to divert enough Nazi strength from the Russian front to help the Reds materially in their present grave position. The answer would seem to be in the negative.

Continual and heavy bombing of German cities probably would force withdrawal of some Nazi air-power from the Muscovite front, and any easement would be all to the good for the Bolshevists. However, the bombing can scarcely affect the situation soon enough to help the Reds in their current fight.

Another question that arises is how far such massed bombing might carry us toward victory—a burning topic of debate at the moment. There are those who maintain that the war can be won in the air.

This theory has yet to be proved, and in any event the forthcoming Allied operations won't be on big enough scale at the outset to force an immediate decision. That bombing can play havoc with Hitler's war industries and transportation is a foregone conclusion, but the contribution this will make toward victory will depend on the trend of the Russo-German fighting.

If Hitler breaks through to fresh resources in the Caucasus, and hamstrings the Russian army, he will be able to bolster his lagging war industries in Czechoslovakia and other sections which won't be so much affected by the bombing as factories in western Europe. In other words, he will be able to strengthen his own air-fleet and anti-aircraft defenses and so be better able to meet the Allied onslaught.

On the other hand, if the Russians are able to hold the Nazis, German industry will decline with ever-increasing speed. This will mean a deterioration of Hitler's air defense and thus will make the task of the Allied air-fleet easier.

Air Marshal Harris invited the German people to cast off Hitlerism and make peace, thereby avoiding destruction of their cities. Without evidence to support the idea, I don't think we should bank on the Germans quitting solely because of bombing. We've seen Warsaw endure a protracted deluge of bursting steel without a whimper, and we've seen the British defy the most terrific bombardment of history.

The Germans are a brave people and it will take a lot to break their morale. It wasn't fear of death by violence that made them surrender in the last war, but a combination of other circumstances: stark hunger, imposed by the British blockade; lack of a just cause for which to make further sacrifice for their war lord; and the encouragement of President Wilson's Utopian fourteen points.

However, similar circumstances are beginning to pile up on them now. Apart from other things, unless Hitler achieves success in this summer offensive, his people are likely to experience a winter of terrible distress. And certainly the death and destruction and nerve strain caused by bombing won't give their morale any uplift.

There's one other interesting thought. Any Allied invasion of the continent must be preceded by a fierce aerial bombardment of coastal defenses, air bases, and transport lines. Once the bombing has cleared the way, we may get that second front.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The girl (Lucille Roberts) stood in the center of the Rainbow Room blindfolded, and the man (Eddie Roberts) moved from table to table talking to the guests.

One guest pulled a small green stone from his pocket and shielded it so that only Eddie Roberts would be able to see it. When Roberts saw it he called to the girl, "What is it?"

"It's a tiki," she replied. "It represents the god of fertility."

ROBERTS moved on to the next table. A guest at that table exhibited a folded piece of paper on which appeared the picture of a bird. "What is the bird?" Roberts called to the blindfolded girl.

"It's a kiwi, the national bird of New Zealand, and it is on a one pound New Zealand note," the girl said.

Roberts moved to another table. A man simply wrote down something on a piece of paper. "What has the gentleman written?" Roberts asked.

"He has written two words—Traveling Crane," was the reply.

By this time the Rainbow Room was on its head. Another guest exhibited a torn piece of paper. "That's a piece of the Congressional Record," the girl correctly replied.

A woman at the next table held up a telegram. Could the blindfolded girl tell her what was on the telegram? Yes, indeed, the telegram said, "Thinking of you," and it was signed "Tom."

I handed Eddie Roberts a ring of keys and indicated the largest key on the ring. "That's a key—a house key," the girl called. "Well, what's the number on it," the man persisted. "It hasn't any number," she said.

FOUR days later I dropped around for a talk with Lucille and Eddie Roberts. They had never seen me, and I had never seen them. Eddie looked at me and said, "You were sitting on the left side of the room, towards the rear, and you showed me a ring with four keys on it."

That really startled me. I was amazed that his memory was so keen, and I had to take the keys out of my pocket and count them. I had no idea there were only four keys on the ring.

I said, "I know it's communication, but how many items can you two identify like that?"

The answer to this was that they can identify anything anybody brings into a nightclub — I myself heard her read off Elk lodge cards, identify pictures of houses, and perhaps 25 other items and trinkets that people pulled from their pockets.

Did they ever miss?

"One man wrote down a word and I refused it," Eddie admitted. "We didn't miss it because I didn't give it to her. I didn't want to take the chance. But if we ever get it again we'll be ready for it."

I asked Lucille and Eddie Roberts what that word was. It was one of the longest words in the dictionary — Antidisestablishmentarianism.

Use Pruning Shears

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE'VE been pruning the garden. Wow, what a job! Of course it isn't the right time, but you can't always pick your dates when something puts you out of circulation, as you've probably discovered. So at last you come down to what was once a carefully tended garden—or business—and find it's run amuck.

California gardens for instance. Turn your back on them for a few weeks and you come back to find your carefully trained shrubs swooping up like vegetable giraffes—heliotropes and fuchsias webbed across your window, delicate vines swollen to the proportions of boa constrictors. Lovely mess! So you steel your nerves and hack away without mercy, or else your garden will be strangled by its own denseness.

That isn't just true of gardens. It's true of human beings as well. Of you. And of me.

Healthy life isn't just a process of growing. There are all kinds of growth, destructive as well as constructive. Growth that kills as well as growth that gives beauty. So life is a process of pruning as well as of growing.

You've seen unpruned lives. They started out with healthy ambition and curiosity. They were all set for orderly and lovely growth. And then something happened. There was some neglect, some hurt, some laziness or stubbornness on their own part. And instead of going ahead they ran amuck. They became solitary and unsocial.

They let their private peeves and prejudices multiply until no breadth of progress could penetrate their inner darkness. And in that darkness the stagnation grew and grew until they were shut off from the wind and the sunlight and the starlight of normal existence.

We've all of us known times like that. Sometimes it came with grief or poverty, self-pity or rebellion. But always when it came, life went back to the jungle.

If you want a rose to bloom you must cut it back every year, cut out the old wood and give the new shoots a chance. And by the same token if you want a life to bloom you must cut out its dead wood, lay it open to the saving service of conflict and criticism, let the new ideas, the new viewpoints, have a chance.

It won't be easy. It may, indeed, be very painful to do this. For, of course, you won't believe that you need pruning. Demoralization is an insidious affair. A garden doesn't announce that its going to heck . . . neither does a character. A garden is perfectly content to be comfortable in its matted darkness. So is a character. And the longer either a garden or a character remains unpruned, the tougher it will be to tackle.

Maybe you've vaguely wondered why you've lost your interest in life . . . why people don't seek your advice or respect your views. Then take a tip, my friend. Give yourself an honest once-over. Then get out those pruning shears.

A Farmer's Diary

Bracket Fungus

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE fire that swept through our woods two years ago left many small trees dead. Down near the roots of these are bracket fungi in great profusion. I found a "painted fungus" of this type. The top was deep rose red. The upper surface was moist and cool—it felt almost like a cold piece of flesh. The under side was grayish white, long thread-like tissues held together by a more elastic substance.

I pared the red covering off from the outside, and found a gelatinous mass beneath that stuck, tenaciously to my fingertips. I thought how beautifully it was made, and how rapidly it had grown to its present size. I pulled it apart still more, and found it merited close inspection.

The spot from which I broke this piece was very small, but the root-like tubes that anchored it were tough and cream colored like rubber of fine quality. I tore a portion of the spongy wood away and found the roots had penetrated the stump for a great distance.

This mighty family, the fungi, reduce dead tissues to lower forms of dust and ashes. The old stumps in the woods are not alone—these same fungi attack timbers in buildings of every kind. They feed on railroad ties, the exposed parts of piles driven at water's edge, reeds and woody sedges.

Grown to maturity, the bracket fungus becomes hard and glossy above, and underneath are formed millions of spores like dust from puff balls of the meadow. With every wind, these blow about the land, alighting and growing wherever conditions are favorable. Often between the small damp folds of white oak or hickory bark, these spores lodge and form this fungus growth. When this occurs, that tree, no matter how lively and beautiful, is doomed. Only by application of creosote or some similar preservative can wood be safeguarded from this ravenous pest. Should it occur upon a living tree, perhaps a tree surgeon could best suggest a cure.

CHAPTER XVI

"I'll be waiting for you at 9 in my room. Remember, 9 o'clock. He walked away.

At 9 o'clock that night, Petty was making Leslie's bed. He met her in his room. He had been talking to Audrey. He noticed her eyes were red and she was sniffling as though she had been crying.

"Good evening, Petty!"

"Good evening, Monsieur Leslie."

"Why Petty, I believe you've been crying."

"Everyone cries today. Bad news, monsieur."

"Is there anything I can do for you?"

"No, Monsieur Leslie, you cannot help me. It is something I must do, that I do not wish to do. Mr. Oliver is a big pig."

"I know," he said solicitously. "He's more than a pig. He's a bully. He never looks you in the face."

The clock measured off the hours—9. She faced the clock. Each bong a blow in her face. "Oh, 9 o'clock. That is when he says I must come to his room, or he will discharge me!"

"Discharge you? Nonsense. "Mrs. Blake is your employer, not that Oliver person."

"Yes! Yes! But the big pig can make plenty trouble for me. He make me afraid. I don't know what to do!" Leslie paced the room, like a meditative man, pondering a weighty decision.

Suddenly he stopped in front of Petty and said, "Petty, forget the whole nasty thing. I'll handle this for you."

"What do you mean, Monsieur Leslie?"

"You wait right here. I'm going to give him a big surprise."

But no servient brunet walked into his den after a brisk knock. Leslie stood in front of him, face tilted boldly up to his.

"Mr. Oliver, I believe?"

"You know damn well who. These are my quarters. What are you doing here?"

"I've come to talk to you about a very delicate matter."

"Get downstairs where you belong . . I've no time for you tonight."

"Ah! You're expecting a visitor?"

"Yes, I am. And you are in the way. So get out!"

"A lady, I presume?"

"Yes, a lady."

"Well, I have the pleasure to inform you that the lady in question is not coming here."

"You don't know what you're talking about."

"Oh, yes, I do, because it was I who stopped her from coming here."

Oliver had been listening impatiently. Now he was scarcely able to control his anger, and his hand ached to grab Leslie.

"Listen, you charity pup," he shouted, "you'd be in the poor house if I had anything to say."

"And you listen to me, you big roue! Don't you touch with your dirty hands the lady I represent. If you should—"

"So what! I'll get that French girl whenever I please."

"Not while I'm alive to defend her!"

"You sniveling pup!"

Leslie straightened his shoulders, slipped closer to the blustering Oliver and slapped him hard across the face.

It was not the force of the blow, but the nasty feeling that he had figuratively been spat upon that made Oliver swing his fist. The blow caught Leslie on the lip. A thin trickle of blood showed, but no trickle of tears. They clutched and scuffled. The bed groaned, the dresser mirror was shattered, the chairs clattered. And Leslie held on, like a bulldog, while Oliver bellowed.

Above and about them the occupants of the house awakened; doors swung open; lights flashed on. There were questioning calls, the patter of running feet.

The children, in night clothes, were the first to get there, chattering like magpies; they gazed open mouthed, for a moment before they descended on Oliver like locusts.

When Audrey and Petty and the cook came, Oliver was stretched out flat on the floor—two children on each arm and leg, and "Paunchy," a fat boy, sitting cross-legged on Oliver's stomach.

They were loath to leave the scene of their battle. Audrey ordered them to bed; Petty and the cook had to shoo them away.

Audrey entered the library where she sat at the heavy oaken table to listen to stories, accusations and threats.

But the twisted skein was untangled by Petty. Her story Audrey understood best.

Against her, Oliver blustered again, disclaiming all improper thoughts about her.

"I've been here a good many years, I almost think of it as my home," he said.

"Perhaps that is why you acted that way," Audrey responded.

"There are no two ways about it. Either she goes, or I go."

Audrey was quiet for a moment, then said, "I'm very sorry; your services are no longer required, and you will leave in the morning."

Creswell, editor of the Denver Telegram, called up Gordon the next day and told him that Alvin Oliver had checked out of Denver by plane for the East.

The quick change in Oliver's plans from a visit to the house in the valley to a speedy return to Moonhollow, set Gordon thinking. It was a fine new morsel of mystery to chew on, but without some help from Morley, any idea would be mere conjecture. Morley held the needed information he wanted to put together the mixed-up pieces of the jig-saw puzzle that lay in his mind.

Get close enough to Morley so that he would disclose events that were now concealed hidden by careful design or merely because they were no longer of use and had no place in his present or future projects. That was the problem!

Gordon sat quietly for a few minutes, thinking deeply. Then he hopped into a taxi and presented himself at the Willoughby hospital's front desk and asked the number of Clifford Morley's room.

"Room 205, second floor," was the answer.

Morley received him coldly. He was sitting up in bed, his face yellowish pale. The cut on his head was covered by bandage and a piece of adhesive. His right hand was held in a bandana sling, he smoked nervously, in quick puffs.

"You're an unexpected surprise!" he said.

"Welcome, I hope?"

"Why not!"

"Thanks. You look as though all you need is fresh air and exercise!"

"Yes—that's all I need. But let me try and get it! This staying in bed is getting on my nerves!" Morley frowned. Then after a moment, "How'd you know I was here?"

"Miss Leroy telephoned me just before she left town and told me about your automobile accident. She asked me to come in and read the headlines to you. I brought a New York newspaper with me."

"Cora is a swell girl! I promised to go to Chicago when they let me out of here. Sit down."

"What do you want to hear? Politics, war or finance?"

"Turn to the theatrical and movie news. I want to stop thinking about serious things."

Gordon opened the newspaper, Morley continued: "It's this hand of mine that worries me. It keeps right on burning, and feels sore when I move my fingers." Gordon nodded sympathetically and unfolded the newspaper.

He read part of the Broadway column. Morley lay motionless, eyes unseeing, and ears unhearing, a thin spiral of smoke rising from his cigaret. Gordon's voice droned meaningless. Gordon was thinking sharply. He had arrived at the hospital with a scheme in mind and wanted to lead up to a poignant way of setting it in motion, he was getting uneasy as he realized his time to accomplish it was getting shorter and shorter.

It was necessary to act. Gordon put down the newspaper suddenly and jumped up. "Hell, Morley," he blurted out as though defiant and angered with himself. "You've more self-control than I have! I hand you the palm! I can't finish this tripe! I'm not in the mood!"

For the first time since Gordon arrived Morley gave him real attention.

"What are you upset about?" Morley asked with interest.

"I'm in a jam! A rotten mess!" Gordon appeared to be pathetic, jittery. "It looks like the third act curtain for me!"

It was Schopenhauer who said: Tell someone bad news about yourself and you have a good listener. Morley reacted psychologically 100 per cent.

"If you came here for a touch, you've had the wrong hunch! You can't get a nickle out of me. I'm broke. But what's your trouble?"

"It isn't money!"

"Did a traffic cop give you a ticket?"

"I'd take a dozen and not lose any sleep over them!"

"Did your girl run away with your best friend?"

"Not yet. But I wouldn't even mind that!" Gordon stopped talking and paced the floor. He picked up his hat and coat as though he were ready to dash out of the room, but, as he hoped, before he got a chance to open the door, Morley stopped him.

"Hold on Lewis. Don't go. Spill the dirt. You can trust me. I might be able to help you. I will if I can. Morley was aroused. He was sitting up straight, almost pleading. "I've been in plenty of jams too!"

Gordon dropped his coat, flung his hat on a chair and came back close to Morley's bed. He paused, timing his words like an experienced actor, spoke in a low, frightened voice: "There's a warrant of arrest out for me . . . I'm wanted by the police!"

30 COWBOYS DRIVE HERD

GILROY, Cal.—(U.P.)—The largest herd of cattle seen in this country in 30 years passed through here, driven from Mexico to a California butcher. The herd consisted of 1,400 head. It required 30 cowboys to keep them in motion.

STORY COVERS 300 YEARS OF LAKES HISTORY

'Long Ships Passing,' Written By Ohio Author, Placed on Library Shelves.

"Long Ships Passing," an Ohio author's story covering 300 years of history and adventure on the Great Lakes, is now available at the Mansfield Public Library.

Walter Havighurst, the writer, is associate professor of English at Miami university at Oxford, and he has compiled a singularly dramatic story of one of the great trade routes of the world.

Under another title, "America Speaks," Philip Gibbs gives the results of a study of this country which began last September and ended after Japan's sneak attack. The story he tells, of a mighty nation transformed overnight from a psychology of anti-intervention, to one of quiet fury and determination to win the world's greatest war, makes a book that is particularly revealing and significant.

In his new book, "Europe In Revolt," Rene Kraus reconstructs the underground war against Nazi oppression now being waged by blacked-out Europe. His sources of information include the legations, the consular representations, the information offices of the nations involved and numerous private sources.

A TREASURY OF BIOGRAPHY edited by Edgar Johnson is an anthology of more or less extensive excerpts from the greatest English and American biographies from the Renaissance to the present. Wolsey, Hakluyt, John North, Trelawney, Dickens, Strachey and Steffens are only a few of the 24 men Mr. Johnson has chosen to include in his "treasury."

Other Non-fiction: THE STEEL SQUARE by Green; JIGS, TOOLS AND FIXTURES by Gates; WELDING AND METAL CUTTING by Molloy; STRUCTURE OF METALS AND ALLOYS by Hume-Rothery; ELEMENTARY MATHEMATICS FOR ENGINEERS by Fleming; ENGINEER'S SKETCH BOOK by Barber; WIRELESS COILS, CHOKES AND TRANSFORMERS by Camm; ERECTING AND INSTALLATION WORK by Molloy; WORKSHOP CALCULATIONS, TABLES AND FORMULAE by Camm; OPTICS AND SERVICE INSTRUMENTS.

FICTION: ASSIGNMENT IN BRITTANY by Helen MacInnes, is a more than satisfactory successor to her first book, "Above Suspicion." A young British officer is sent to France after the debacle of Dunkirk, in the guise of a wounded French soldier, to find out what the Nazis planned to do with the coast of France. His was a dangerous mission at best—and it became nerve-racking in the extreme when he discovered, almost too late, that there had been important omissions in his information.

DINNER AT BELMONT by Alfred L. Crabb, is an enchanting and skillfully written novel dealing with Nashville's most eventful years, 1858-1865, when she welcomed home a famous son, William Walker. Patricians, riff-raff, historical personages and fictional figures all mingle in an heroic and very human drama of the home, the road and the battlefield—with a nameless stagecoach driver the most entertaining character of all.

THE STRONG CITY by Taylor Caldwell, is a romantic and robust novel which tells the story of Franz Stoessel who rose from nothing to become the head of the Schmidt Steel company. Ruthless and indomitable, he seems to fear nothing, and only Seigard Schmidt, subtle and deformed, perceives that he is really driven by fear. Franz marries Seigard's frail sister, but his real passion is for a distant and beautiful cousin.

OTHER FICTION: DAUGHTER OF TIME by White; WHEREVER THE GRASS GROWS by Bosworth; CASE OF THE DROWNING DUCK by Gardner.

BOLTS WHEELS ON MILK TRUCK

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — "They're not too quiet, and they may jar you a little, but they'll get you there just the same."

That's Irving Cuchnow's description of his "ersatz" tires.

Designed for milk wagon use, the tires are made of four sections of seasoned oak, each of which is bolted to

ACTS TO DENY NEW TIRES TO ALL SPEEDERS

OPA Administrator Calls on Highway Patrol To Report Tire-Wasting Drivers.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—To help enforce the government's tire conservation program, the OPA regional administration today moved to deny new tires, retreads and recaps for commercial trucks and passenger cars driven at tire-wasting speeds.

Administrator Birkett L. Williams called upon state highway patrol systems in the five-state region of Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan to report to the OPA license numbers of every vehicle traveling faster than 40 miles an hour.

At the same time, he instructed regional tire rationing authorities to direct rationing boards to withhold both new and repaired tires from speeding drivers.

First hand information on truck and car speeds prompted today's action by the administrator, who set an example for enforcement of regulations. Returning from a long motor trip, Williams announced last Monday:

"I drove 40 miles an hour and a lot of trucks passed me right up. I followed one truck driver just to see. He was traveling from 50 to 55 miles an hour."

The administrator took the truck driver's license number, turned it over to a regional rationing executive with the expressed hope that "when he tries to get another tire or recap he'll have some trouble."

Under the regional administration's enforcement plan, highway patrolmen would report license numbers of all speeding vehicles to state OPA offices. Owners' names and addresses would be checked and the report sent to their respective rationing boards for file. When owners apply for new tires, tubes, retreads or recaps the file would show a "black mark" against speeders.

Williams pointed out a tire rationing amendment prohibits issuing certificates to applicants whose tires are unusable because of abuse or neglect, and added:

"We are letting the local boards know that it is the policy of OPA in this region that abusers and misusers of tires should get none. As it is, the quotas are not enough to go around to all eligibles, and we'll start denying tires first to those undeserving for this reason."

Graduation To Be Held Tuesday For Women In Corps

Graduation exercises for another group of volunteers, the Red Cross Women's Motor corps, will be held Tuesday night at South park in connection with a picnic supper.

Not all of the 32 members will be eligible to receive certificates as a few of them have still to complete either their first aid or regular motor corps training.

The course that calls for 30 hours of first aid, 12 hours of motor mechanics training and 16 hours of military drill is now in its final stages of drill at the Mansfield armory. When foot drill is completed the corps will start training with trucks.

Mrs. O. D. Fair is captain of the organization and Mrs. Ruth Grimm is general chairman of picnic arrangements. Mrs. George Jameson is assisting Mrs. Grimm.

THERE'S A NEW PURINA DEALER in town. Now we can get all we want of those good Purina Hog and Steer Feeds and show our boss the value of the Purina Plan for Profitable Production. Let's go!

WAR BOND SALES $4,000,000 AHEAD OF JUNE, REPORT SHOWS

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—War bond sales spurted this month, the Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland reported today.

Surveying all except postoffice sales in the fourth district—Ohio, eastern Kentucky, western Pennsylvania and the West Virginia Panhandle—the bank said:

"The July daily average was exceeded only by the January figure. Up to July 27 sales of series E bonds were $31,492,000 in contrast with $27,445,000 in the entire month of June.

Sales of F and G bonds also improved materially, totaling $28,000,000 up to July 27, compared with $16,133,000 in the preceding month and $39,000,000 in January when large purchasers took their entire year's quota in effect at that time.

Raising the limit on the amount of F and G bonds that may be purchased in any one calendar year to $100,000 of either or both from the $50,000 limit which prevailed in the first half of the year may have been responsible for the rise in the sale of those bonds."

GETS POST

ASHLAND—J. Paul Donley of Ashland has been named to the board of appeals of the Ashland county selective service board. He succeeds H M. Clark, who resigned.

Donley is a veteran of World war I. W. W. Barnhill of Orange township is the other member of the appeals board.

Seven Youths From Mansfield Area Enter Service.

Enlisted recently at the Mansfield recruiting station of the U. S. Marines corps, seven youths including one Mansfielder, left this week to enter service.

Recruits will go first to Cleveland for final physical examinations and from there to Parris Island, S. C., for six weeks basic training.

Enlisted from the Mansfield station were Mathias J. Waleria, 20, of 327 High street, Mansfield; Malcolm L. Schreck, 20, of Galion R D. 3; Carl F. Hagy, jr., of Crestline; Earl F. Taylor, 18, of Danville R. D. 1; Charles R. Cramer, 19, of Galion R. D. 2; Harold Jewell, 19, of Mt. Vernon; and Clyde Hawkins, 22, of Newark.

Staff Sgt. Richard A. Cataldo heads the Mansfield recruiting station in the post office building.

RIDICULES IDEA

FORT ORD, Cal.—(U P.)—Brig Gen. Frederick H Osborn, chief of the U S. army's special morale service, ridiculed the idea that the American soldier is "soft."

He declared that today's rank and file are not being pampered. He said, however, that "the pace of modern warfare and training is so strenuous that the minds of the American boys must be given a rest—just like their bodies must rest after a hard hike."

The general visited here during a general inspection trip along the Pacific coast.

HENS SCARCE

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The goose that laid the golden egg is called a chicken in Panama.

There, the department of commerce reports, chickens sell for as much as $2.50 each. The price is attributed to improved economic conditions and defense expenditures in the Canal Zone.

Panama, a poultry-producing country whose domestic supply is short of current demands, is trying to set a maximum of $1.80 each by lowering the import tariff from 50 cents to five cents a fowl and placing a limitation upon the number imported.

BIGGEST VICE SQUAD AT WORK IN COLUMBUS

Prepares Drive on Venereal Disease as Liquor Board Suspends Permits.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Prostitution and other forms of vice today faced annihilation as the capital city's "biggest vice squad in history" prepared to wipe out the brand by army officials that "Columbus has the worst vencreal disease record in the entire four-state fifth service command."

While city officials were launching their own anti-vice campaign, the state liquor board announced it had suspended for the unexpired term the beer and liquor license of Sena Bryson, proprietor of the Brysonian, Shadeville dance hall, two miles west of Lockbourne air base. This action followed the complaint of Col. O. M. Baldinger, commandant of the huge glider base.

The recent furloughing of 128 policemen has seriously curtailed work of the Columbus vice squad, Mayor Floyd Green pointed out at a meeting of city police and health officials, municipal judges and army officers, but an "enlarged force will be created," he added.

Quick results in the drive were seen with the announcement by police that Albert Kubitschack, 49, was arrested charged with running a house of prostitution and Virginia Hutchison, 22, was arrested and charged with engaging in that form of vice. Police also seized pinball machines and punchboards.

Some 130 Columbus liquor and dance hall permit holders have been called to a meeting in the council chambers next Tuesday. "It is advisable for them to attend the meeting so they will know what is to be done to clean up the vice situation immediately," Mayor Green pointed out.

In revoking the Brysonian's three permits, the state liquor board invoked for the first time the section of the law giving it power to act "in the revocation or cancellation of any permit of its own initiative or on complaint of the department or of any person, after a hearing. . . ."

The board's decision stated: "This action, taken upon complaint and after public hearing, is deemed necessary in the interest of the preservation of the health and welfare of the men in training for the armed forces of the country."

Col. Baldinger was the only witness appearing before the board.

Up and Down the Street

Municipal court is not a "collection agency," neither is it a wage adjustment board. These facts were made clear by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, who was sustained by state highway patrolmen and others, during the trial recently of a Richland county autoist. The representative of a local firm which owned a truck figuring in a three-way collision, presented a bill for repairs which was approved. However, the arresting officer and the judge rebelled when an accompanying bill sought to collect not only the wages of the truck driver for the period the truck was under repairs and for the time consumed in his court appearance, but also to collect the equivalent of use-hire or what the truck normally would yield in company use for the same period.

A 37-year-old pencil that still looks as good as new is one of the prized souvenirs of the Richland county board of elections. The pencil, only slightly used, bears the advertising of Charles O. Hubbs, who was in the coal and auto and buggy painting business in Mansfield soon after the turn of the century. One line of advertising on it said: "Auto and buggy painting a specialty." Another advertised "Rubber tires." Keeping abreast with the times, Hubbs now is in the filling station business in Mansfield.

Information on the subject, from apparently reliable sources, has conflicted but M. F. Cline should know, and he says that Charles Ozier and Fred Ozier were cousins, not brothers, and that Nelson Ozier, former postmaster, was a great-uncle of Gene, who returns to Mansfield this weekend to become manager of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Newest Mansfield publication, scheduled to appear shortly, will be staffed entirely by women and not necessarily because of the war. Known as the B-Hive, the paper is being published by Beta Kappa Tau, Mansfield sorority. In addition to business and social news of the organization, the four-page first edition will carry a sizable department of service news. It will be sent to husbands, brothers and friends in the armed forces. Ruby Boltman heads the editorial staff.

PETRILLO STANDS BY AFM RULING

Fails To Answer Elmer Davis' Plea To Rescind Order as Patriotic Duty.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, today stood by his order that will stop 140,000 union musicians at midnight from making any more phonograph records or radio transcriptions for commercial use.

He said last night that he had not answered Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, who had appealed to him to rescind the order "as a patriotic duty." Petrillo said he would answer Davis when he had a chance.

Petrillo handed out copies of a letter he had written to James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. Fly had promised to investigate Petrillo's ban on recordings.

He told Fly that he was no "czar" and that his orders had been approved by the AFM membership.

"It may be surprising to the public to know that 95 per cent of the music in the United States and Canada heard today is canned music," he wrote Fly.

"Only five per cent is left for the poor professional musician who studied all his life so that he might make a living for his family. This is a question of a large group of men fighting for their existence.

"While the government is spending its good time and money protecting those who have combined against the AFM, irrespective of any action taken, the AFM must protect itself with its own resources. This is very unfair."

It was believed that small radio stations, which rely on records and transcriptions for most of their music, would be the biggest sufferers if the ban continued. Juke boxes and companies that supply canned music by telephone wires also will suffer.

Petrillo also was embroiled in a dispute with the Mutual Broadcasting System. AFM musicians walked out of Stations KFRC, San Francisco, and WARM, Scranton, Pa., and Mutual's remote dance-band pickups were banned by Petrillo, although they were allowed to go on the air locally.

New 25,000-Ton Craft First of Kind To Go Down Ways Since Pearl Harbor.

(By International News Service)

NORFOLK, Va—The U. S. S. Essex, a 25,000-ton token of America's projected strength in aircraft carriers and the first such fighting vessel launched since Pearl Harbor, goes down the ways at Newport News today.

The first of a new carrier class bearing her name, the Essex will slide into the James river without benefit of formal speeches or fanfare. Commander Albert E. Stone, chaplain of the Norfolk navy yard, will deliver the invocation while Mrs. Artemus L. Gates, wife of the assistant secretary of navy for air, will act as sponsor for the giant vessel.

Further in keeping with the wartime spirit of the occasion, other work in the yard of the Newport News shipbuilding and dry dock company, where the Essex keel was laid 15 months and three days ago, was not to be interrupted.

While wartime necessity cloaks many construction details of this fourth Essex in secrecy, naval publications say she will have at least 16 five-inch guns and carry from 75 to 80 planes. She is smaller than the Lexington, lost in the Coral sea battle, and the Saratoga—both of 33,000 tons—but larger than either the Enterprise or Hornet, carriers displacing about 20,000 tons. The Yorktown, 20,000 tons, was put out of action at Midway.

JAP (BEETLE) SABOTEURS WREAK HAVOC OVER WIDE AREA OF OHIO

(By Associated Press)

BRATENAHL—Millions of Japanese saboteurs are wreaking havoc in sections of Ohio this summer, and although these enemies are beetles rather than humans their ravenous appetite is causing great concern to growers of everything from artichokes to zinias.

The center of Ohio infestation in this Cuyahoga county village, where millions of the pests are at work—170,000 were trapped last week, and entomologists estimate traps lure only one of every 10 beetles.

"This is the hottest spot in Ohio for the beetles, but an outbreak in Youngstown is worrying us," said a state entomologist. "There is another infestation at North Salem, and a few are at work in Akron, Canton, Steubenville, Marietta and Gallipolis."

The insect lays eggs in grasslands. About June 15 every year the full-grown grubs start emerging as beetles, and begin eating foliage and fruit of trees, shrubs, berry crops and vegetables.

Colorful in their armor of coppery brown and metallic green, the pests are about a third of an inch long. They turn elm leaves into lace, chew the silk off sweet corn, eat early apples down to their cores and peaches to the pit—and attack at least 200 more kinds of vegetation.

Damage in this "hot spot" was surveyed yesterday by 300 gardeners and commercial growers of northern Ohio, at a meeting addressed by experts from the state agricultural experiment station. These entomologists said the principal control is the treating of grass turf with lead arsenate—10 pounds to 1,000 square feet of lawn. This destroys grubs, reducing the following year's beetle crop.

IT'S CRITICAL

Steel Shortage Blamed on Industry By Senator.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Sen. Harry S. Truman (D) Mo., chairman of a special senate defense committee, today declared that the steel shortage is so critical that "congress may have to step on some very important industrial toes."

His committee, he said, has received "seemingly convincing information" that:

1. The steel industry itself is not doing all that it can to produce plate and structural steel.

2. Out-moded practices are being followed when the emergency calls for the most drastic of measures to win the war.

3. Ninety-five per cent of steel production is going into war channels, leaving the country with only five per cent to maintain all the establishments necessary to civil life and construction of more steel facilities.

QUOTAS BOOSTED

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The coffee and tea quotas of four Ohio counties have been increased by the War Production Board to cope with population increases of more than 10 per cent. The counties are: Greene 12.5; Hamilton 10; Montgomery 10, and Portage 15 per cent.

GUARD BEACHES

Soldiers Keep Civilians Off Miami Sea Front at Night.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(U.P.)—Armed military police, re-enforced by soldiers bristling with rifles and conspicuously displayed side arms, "will continue to keep civilians off Miami Beach's waterfront tonight and as often and as long as is necessary," an authorized army spokesman said today.

The announcement followed last night's surprise appearance of soldiers and coastguardsmen along the 12-mile palm-studded shoreline of this resort city.

Four of the eight Nazi saboteurs being tried before a military commission in Washington, it will be recalled, landed in rubber boats from a German submarine at Ponte Vedra Beach, near Jacksonville, off the Florida coast.

HORNETS WIN THIS 'BATTLE'

Ohio Guardsmen Swell With Something Besides Pride.

CAMP ZALESKI, O.—(AP)—Some of the Ohio State guardsmen who repelled a surprise paratroop "invasion" swelled with something besides pride today.

The troops easily polished off five theoretical bombers and 250 simulated 'chutists yesterday, but an earlier aerial attack by a swarm of hornets was more successful.

A crack fortification company was engaged in a guervi la maneuver. It posted a lookout in a tree.

Just as the unit began climbing a barbed wire fence, the lookout accidentally knocked a hornet's nest out of its perch.

A semi-official report said the outfit retreated to a new line of defense—the camp hospital.

HE'S INDUCTED

Editor of PM Taken Into Army As a Volunteer.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ralph Ingersoll, editor of the newspaper PM, was inducted into the army today as a volunteer. He will report at Camp Upton on Long Island tomorrow.

The 41-year-old editor enlisted after his local draft board refused to change his 1-A classification following an appeal by Marshall Field, owner of PM, in Ingersoll's behalf.

Few Clues Found In Powder Blast That Killed Five

Raymond C. Suran, agent in charge, admitted late last night that "nothing conclusive" was learned in FBI work started minutes after the explosion occurred yesterday.

Killed were Clayton Moore, 31, and Sidney Abner, 33, both of South Lebanon; Roy Pence, 21, of Cozaddale; Melvin Bolen, about 45, of Blanchester, and Luther Mullins, 34, of Foster.

The Cincinnati ordnance district office, in announcing the damage estimate, said plant operations would resume "in a comparatively short time."

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Five workmen were injured in an explosion and fire which destroyed a storage section of the Oster Manufacturing company engaged in war work, here last night. What caused the explosion was not determined immediately.

JAIL SUSPECTS IN BURGLARY

Cleveland Police Hold Pair In Clothing Theft.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Two suspects in a $500 burglary of an East Liverpool clothing store will be taken to the Ohio river city today by Cleveland police.

Cleveland Detectives Leland Hough and Harry Traubenberg arrested the two suspects while they were sleeping in a car on East 79th street yesterday.

Officers said that following the burglary early Tuesday, two men escaped in a car but that their companion, a Clevelander, fell from the running board and is being held by East Liverpool authorities.

3 ARRESTED

Motorists Apprehended on Traffic Violation Counts.

Each charged with separate violations of state traffic regulations, three motorists were arrested in the Mansfield area yesterday and today by state highway patrolmen.

Arrested last night on U. S. Route 42, Allan D. Kleinman of Cleveland Heights, posted $16.30 bond and waived appearance in municipal court on a speeding charge. Also arrested on Route 42 yesterday, James E. Byers, 31, of Columbus was fined $10 and costs by Ashland Police Judge Harold Andrews for illegally crossing a yellow line.

Harold P. Algire, 39, of Crestline, charged with failing to observe a stop sign on State Route 61, was cited to appear later in Mayor C. W. Kindinger's court at Crestline.

New Transport Planes Roll Off Assembly Lines

Described with army permission as America's answer to Hitler's JU52 transports which were used extensively in all German invasions of Europe, the C-46 is more sturdy, can carry greater loads and has greater speed—almost that, in fact, of a combat plane.

Its powerful twin motors can send an undisclosed number of fully-equipped infantrymen, together with jeeps, winging nonstop across the ocean in little more than 9 hours, it is estimated.

So great is the load-carrying ability of the new planes that company engineers estimate a fleet of 35 could transport 30,000 tons of material in one month, a feat which would require use of 7,700 trucks for land transportation over the same period of time.

The Commandos also can carry artillery, trucks, aircraft engines, gasoline drums and other articles of war.

SALVAGE PILE GROWS

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Ohio's industrial scrap piles have produced in the last 60 days 156,323 tons of iron and steel; 9,890 tons of non-ferrous metals; 1,350 tons of rubber and 11,340 tons of miscellaneous materials, the War Production Board's salvage section reported.

ANNUAL RECITAL HELD BY PIANO STUDENTS

Pupils of Raymond Baum Are Entertained at School Yesterday; Party Given After Hour Program.

THE ANNUAL SUMMER RECITAL and party of the music students of Raymond Baum were given at his studio in St. Peter's high school yesterday. The program opened with an hour of piano selections begun by John Bishop playing, "Charm and Grace Waltz" by Kohlman. This was followed by his own arrangement of the "Marine Hymn."

Jay Kimmel then offered "Dancing Lessar" and "Follow the Leader," taken from the Oxford piano course. "Harp Echoes" by Walter Rolfe, "Dance of the Pussy Willows" by V. Renton, and Tchaikowsky's "Chanson Triste" were given by Zita Ann Dalton. Margaret Ann Yirga chose "Carnival in Vienna" opus 713, by Robert Stalz for her selection.

Emma Schmidt played "At Dancing School" by Ada Richter. "Tripping Along" by Thompson and "Wishing Star" were given by Marilyn Harris. A duet, one of Joann Strauss' waltzes, was played by Mildred Cook and Judy Bolin. After that Judy offered the piece "A Pleasant Visit" by Carl W. Kern. Kathleen Bolin played Myra Adler's, "My Puppy," and "Morning Song" by Ella Kelterer.

"Cabin Dance" by William Baines was rendered by John Cook. Edwin Cook played "Hippity Hop" by Arthur Brown and "Green Frog" by Renee Miles. "Johnny Jump Up" by Bennett and "Pansy Bed" were offered by Mildred Cook. John Robbins played "Lightly Row" and "Trot My Pony."

Concluding selections were Carol Cylvis' "Bells at Evening," Bunchy Bair played a group of folk songs. George Hamer's "Tarantella" was given by Michael Sciciliano. The last piece was played by Margaret Ann Cook, who was a guest. She offered Bach's "Gavotte."

Prize winners of the games were Judy and Philip Bolin, John Robbins, John Bishop, Carol Sylvis, Margaret and Ed Cook and Marilyn Harris. Luncheon was served at 4 p. m. by Joan Daley and Margaret Ann Yirga.

Party Held for August Bride

Mr. and Mrs. George Bauer, 389 Auburn avenue, entertained Wednesday evening in honor of their daughter, Ruth Eleanor, whose coming marriage to P. F. C. Richard G. Pittman was announced recently. The couple will be married some time in August.

Fifteen friends and relatives were present. The house was decorated with garden flowers and a large cake served as the table centerpiece. A patriotic color scheme was used. The honoree received many gifts. Mr. Pittman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Pittman, 518 Woodland avenue, and is now at Ft. Story, Va.

"Kid Party" Held By L'Etude Club

Yesterday eight members of L'Etude club enjoyed themselves with a "kid party" given by Mrs. John Grohol, West Fifth street. The president, Mrs. Virginia Murphy, conducted the business session. A paper by Allen E. Backman on "Don't Let These New Rackets Fool You," was given by Mrs. Richard Uhl.

Prize winners for various games were Mrs. M. Welty and Mrs. F. R. Cuddy. Luncheon, in keeping with the party theme, was served at two small tables. The decorations were in bright colors and suckers weer given as favors. Next meeting will be Aug. 13 with Mrs. Murphy at her home, 191 East Arch street.

A Dish of Heart Is Good Food If Not Romantic

Not for romantic tendencies but rather for their high rate of food value, heart dishes — yes, pork, beef, veal and lamb heart—are fine for summer serving.

A real delicacy, heart is amply packed with the proteins, minerals and vitamins which the activities of summer require regularly. Heart being in the thrifty family of meats is an out-and-out bargain, so look to it for a meal at least once a week.

If you've never prepared heart before, take heart for it's not so difficult. Wash it outside and in with plenty of warm water. Cut away all accessible arteries and veins. A pair of sharp shears is a great help in snipping out the hard parts quickly. Heart naturally is muscular, so it needs long and gentle cooking for tender results. You'll find the savory, cooking aroma will delight the family.

As for the amount to order, keep in mind the simple rule that: lamb and small pork hearts make nice, individual servings; large pork hearts and the average calf heart will serve two; and one beef heart of good size will serve a family of five.

Oatmeal Cookies Are Refreshing With Lemonade

When the "heat" is on, it's hard to beat the service of Fresh Lemon Cookies and Cooling Lemonade. This combination unites health and summer relaxation. The lemon flavor furnishes a refreshing quality in both the cookies and beverage making the twosome truly delectable and a favorite worth repeating often throughout the warmer months.

It's economical to serve these refreshments, too, because after grating the waxy-textured yellow lemon peel to use as an important ingredient in the cookies, the juice from these same lemons may be extracted for preparing the lemonade and, likewise, the lemon peel used for the cookie decorations may be secured from juice-extracted lemons. Each lemon does "double duty."

The easy-to-make, easy-to-bake cookies provide health in every bite. The whole grain oats used in the cookies furnish vitamin B1, proteins, phosphorus, and iron.

Lemons have long been known for their health protecting vitamins B and C and more recently this fruit has been found to supply the only known source of vitamin P, or citrin. Vitamin P is the vitamin which has to do with controlling "capillary fragility;" the vitamin that assists in wound healing and hemorrhage prevention.

During summer months vitamin C, so abundant in lemons, is most important to obtain in large quantities for it is the vitamin that helps to counteract fatigue and when exposed to high temperatures is lost from body tissues rapidly. Because it cannot be stored in the body, it must be provided daily with special emphasis on supplying large quantities when Old Sol hits a new high.

Housewives Save Fats to Supply War Ammunition

Every woman who cooks as much as a fried egg has a part in winning the war. In every tablespoon of fat or grease she saves is glycerine, and in glycerine is ammunition for war.

Waste fat saving is the answer busy housewives have been seeking since the outbreak of war. They have been asking, "How can I—who can't leave my home and babies—help win the war?" By carefully saving every spoonful of fat or grease drippings from their skillets and roasting pans, and taking this grease to their meat dealer, they are helping make ammunition for the firing line. Here is a job only a woman can do.

Thus the kitchen has become the biggest home front of the war. The United Nations have a deficit of glycerine. The war has cut off supplies of vegetable oils from the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines. Housewives from their kitchens can make up this deficit. Production experts have estimated a tablespoon of fat or grease saved daily by every housewife in America would supply the need.

Saving waste kitchen fats is not a temporary program. This is a war job for housewives—a job which will last as long as the war lasts. Women are asked to make the saving of fats a habit, a part of the daily household routine.

Directions for saving of fats, as issued by the conservation division of the War Production board are as follows:

Save all fats after the cooking good has been obtained from them. This includes bacon grease, drippings from steak or roast, and vegetable frying fats. Strain into a clean wide-mouthed tin or metal can, and keep in a cool, dark place so that they do not become rancid. When a pound or more is accumulated, take the fats to your meat man. He will pay for them, and later will turn them over to a renderer who will start them on their way to the munitions factories.

Glycerine comprises one-tenth of the substance of fat. Two pounds of waste kitchen fats will fire five anti-tank shells. The waste butcher fats saved by 100,000 families will supply 200,000 anti-aircraft shells a month. If every woman in America saved as little as four ounces of kitchen fat a week, it would make two and a half million pounds of gunpowder.

Given Party on Ninth Birthday

Give Parties for Soldiers, Sailors Home on Furlough

If you are like so many of us who have been planning to entertain some of our uniformed men, but just haven't gotten around to it, why not resolve to do it now? Call the USO today and ask to have a few of the boys sent to your home some evening soon. You will enjoy it as much as they will.

It isn't a lot of trouble because soldiers and sailors are, after all, just boys away from home. They like the sort of thing you do. If you have the space, you need nothing else—except, of course, refreshments.

When you make out your grocery list, be sure to put bottled carbonated beverages at the top for men in all branches of the service vote for soft drinks as tops in refreshment.

The simplest way to serve is buffet style. Prepare a simple, but hearty, fare. Sandwiches, a variety of crackers and cheese, with lots of tall, forsty drinks would be perfect. Just arrange platters of cold cuts and the bottles of soft drinks on the buffet and let the boys serve themselves. The important thing is to have a plentiful supply.

To entertain the men, you might put up the ping pong table and have a few decks of cards for the gin rummy and bridge enthusiasts. See that there are plenty of needles for your phonograph, too. Chances are, it will be played all evening. And keep your classical records, as well as popular numbers, within easy reach. Many service men enjoy symphonic music, when they are not in the dancing mood.

Don't put off that party for the soldiers and sailors another day. It is easy to give one because service men's parties are always strictly informal.

Women Display Colorful Attire In New Styles

By CLAIRE BEACH

It has taken the grimness of war to emphasize surprisingly the lighter side of fashion.

Play clothes are the order of the day as informality goes to the front for the higher spirits we all need these days.

Styles in play clothes are really nicer than they have been for a long time. Here are some results of a shopping trip we took to scout out the latest in informal clothes:

New Colors.

Most women would love a sweet pure silk shantung blouse, featured by a famous store. It's divine to wear with slacks and shorts.

The colors are wonderful, especially, a new one called vital pink, and a peacock blue. The blouses are man-tailored. With either short or long sleeves. They're truly smart.

The humbler fabrics, of course, are just as good. Take a shirt in striped cotton and rayon with the long torso silhouette and three-quarter sleeves. It's perfect to go with a white gaberdine suit and it can be worn with any number of other things, too.

Built For Two.

Bicycling is coming back with a rush, of course (among those who can get hold of one), and the fashion world is keeping right apace. For example, the new bicycle bloomers. One checked gingham suit consisting of jacket and bloomers is simply adorable. The bloomers look very much like a skirt, except that they're caught in under the knee with elastic. Short slacks, of course, are fine for bicycling. They're cool and appropriate and very gay in bright-colored rayons.

Gardening in these days of Victory gardens not only combines a worthwhile endeavor with fine exercise but offers the chance to get into clothes that are cheerful as well as comfortable.

One such costume is a new garden apron made of blue and white striped ticking. It is quite long and has a leather pad where you would be apt to kneel, as well as clips to hold shears and garden tools.

Happy Days For Payers Of Alimony

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It looks as if your Uncle Sam is beginning to take under his wing such of his nephews who have been long qualified as alimony martyrs.

The other day the ways and means committee of the house of representatives approved a proposal whereby a husband would be permitted to deduct alimony payments from his income tax. And the wife must include alimony among her taxable receipts.

The question of alimony in this country, owing to our completely confused divorce laws, has long been the subject of merriment and ridicule. Several successful comedies have been written around its inconsistencies. As taxable income, it was pointed out the other day under the great white dome, alimony would not result in an appreciable increase of revenue.

If the proposal is approved, it will be a step toward a much-needed reform. The granting of alimony in the United States goes back to a time when divorces were extremely rare and the laws of inheritance were all against women. A married woman, at that time, actually couldn't claim money left her by her own father, and few women were capable of earning their own livelihood.

Thousands of alimony grants are made in this country in cases where it would otherwise mean destitution involving young children. Let's hope that Uncle Sam takes these into account through his lawmakers now that he's giving this break to alimony-paying males.

There are cases where alimony is awarded to women whose individual income is several times that of the divorced husband. But there have also been cases in which alimony payments continue after the woman has re-married. There have actually been instances in which women have concurrently collected alimony from two or more former husbands.

After the last World War, when we were engulfed in a depression, the jails in some states were full of unemployed and penniless men held indefinitely on the complaint of former wives because of arrears of alimony. In the Tombs prison in New York City existed the famous "Alimony Club," where men, never convicted of any crime, were held. This procedure recalls the absurdity of the old English debtors' prison, where men were incarcerated for non-payment of debts, thereby being prevented from earning the wherewithal to pay such obligations.

While this reform is under way, it might be well for Uncle Sam to consider whether the prospect of receiving alimony from men of ample income, where marriages remain childless, is not among the factors of our steadily increasing divorce rate.

GIVES CHAPLAIN PROFITS

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"THE SCEPTER is extended," I told Mary, smiling at her nonsense.

"Gramercy!" she answered, mixing her centuries woefully. "But don't you think if you told Aunt Lillian why you wanted to go out with us tonight, it might make it easier for her?"

"Think a minute, Mary!" I adjured her.

"Oh, I know that one backward," she said with a grin. "You mean you can't tell her things over the telephone. But I know you two have a way of camouflaging your conversation that would fool even Katie, our super sleuth."

"I'm not so sure about that, Mary," I said, smiling at her foolery. "A Pinkerton, a Dupin or a Sherlock Holmes, perhaps; but with our Katie there's a distinct question mark."

"Mebbe so, mebbe so," she retorted, "but I'm betting on you."

"I'll do my best," I told her as I turned to the telephone.

I did not know whether to be glad or sorry when Junior answered the telephone. There is nothing in the world I love better to hear than the sound of my children's voices, but I dreaded telling the eager lad, who every day expects that I will be home the next, that my stay in the city must be prolonged.

"Oh Mother!" he greeted me with joy in his voice. "How soon will you be home?"

"I'll tell you presently," I said. But to my relief he did not hear me, so shrill was the clatter of Faith's voice saying, "Me want to talk to Mamma. Me want to talk!"

"All right, Skeezicks," Junior said with loving indulgence. "Here, stand still and I'll hold the receiver to your ear. Now put your mouth close to this and speak up real loud."

Faith Obeys

She followed his instructions so literally that I was almost deafened by the yell which came over the wires.

"Mama!" she shrilled. "Mama! Talk!"

"Yes, darling, I hear you. Are you having a good time?"

She considered a second.

"Zes; dood time," she admitted at last, then added hopefully: "Oo tummin' home, Mama?"

"Yes, darling, very soon. Where is Roderick?"

"Roddy?" she echoed, then Junior, with a consoling "I'll let you talk again," took the receiver from her.

"Rod's out in the field with Jim," he said, and though I would have loved to speak to Dicky's orphaned nephew, I had so little time that I was almost relieved at his absence.

"I haven't time to wait for him," I told my young son. "Tell him I sent my love to him. Now please call Aunt Lillian and tell her I want to speak to her, but first ask Granzie to come to the telephone?"

Talks to Katie

"Sure, I'll tell her first," he promised. "Here's Katie."

"O-oh, Missis Graham, my darling Missis Graham," Katie wailed. "If you not coom home soon, dey haf to put me in vun lo-o-onatic asylum. But I no dare stay now. Old vomans catch me she fry my ears in oil. Yes, Faith, you can talk. But Katie, she fly."

She escaped just in time, for then I heard the voice of my mother-in-law irately demanding "Who left this telephone receiver down for this child to play with? Did you, Richard Second?"

"I didn't mean to, Granzie," Junior said meekly, and my throat muscles constricted in admiring tribute to my boy, who had deflected his grandmother's wrath from Katie, the real culprit.

"Well!" she said with pretended sternness, "don't ever do such a thing again!" Then with a militance in her voice that I knew spelled trouble, she said "Margaret? I am very glad you called. There are things I simply must say to you."

Religion and Solidarity Of Family

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Every now and then someone writes me or tells me that the child should not be exposed to religion until he is old enough to choose selectively the kind of religion he wishes to espouse.

At its face value this proposition seems to be sound. But if you explore a little you will see how impractical it is, in case you are interested in having the child join a church.

By the time the child is old enough to think any such matter through entirely alone (if it were really possible to do so) he is not likely to be interested in any organized form of religion. Religion, or even a particular creed, is not a matter of logic anyway. Some of us fool ourselves that there is clear reasoning back of our particular brand of faith. Chiefly it is a matter of the family into which we happen to be born, and the other friends we have admired.

Why not admit that it is primarily a family matter? Why not go farther and purposely try to make it such?

All else equal, the happiest family is the one where all members belong to the same church, where the children just naturally embrace the faith of their parents and do so not because their parents wish them, but because they choose to do so.

Importance of Family Solidarity.

So far as I am personally concerned a particular religious faith is relatively unimportant in proportion to a family's solidarity.

It is important for parents to have the same religious faith. If they belonged to different churches before marriage they should compromise on one religion before babies are born.

Children who as a matter of habit go from early years with their parents to Sunday school or church or both, and who live together with their parents happily, learning to esteem them, tend to become members of that church. As they do the family unity is to that degree cultivated.

Advises Young Folks.

When I speak to young folks, I say: "If you are seeking greatest happiness for yourself and your family join the church of your parents." But to their parents I advise, "Take it for granted that your children will naturally join your church; but if they don't choose to do so, or to join any other church, don't make them feel they have dishonored you. Just assure yourself that you have not made your religion mean enough to them to make them want to choose it. In a happy family every member chooses and, as a rule, all choose in the same general direction.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

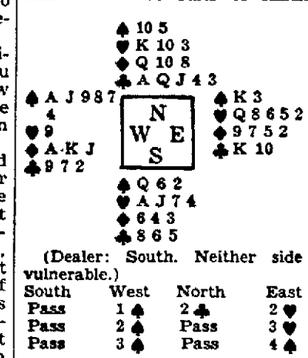
"The Authority on Authorities"

KILL THAT VITAL ENTRY

ENTRIES to dummy are usually of vital importance if it also contains a suit or suits of fairish length which may possibly become established. Killing one of those, before the long suit gets led, may often constitute the only way to beat a contract. Enabling the declarer to work on the long suit first, before that entry is disturbed, may enable him to make a No Trump contract, and give him a chance to drop trumps and then work the success of a suit project.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♥
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Seeing the club K in dummy after he led his A, North decided to try to prevent club ruffs, so switched to the spade 5. The K won this, the J was finessed and the A dropped the Q. The diamond A and K were followed by the J to the Q. The heart was next sent to the A, last trick which the defenders could get. West was able to ruff the next heart and lead to the club K as an entry to dummy to use the diamond 9, now established as a thirteener, to get a discard of the remaining club in his own hand.

If North had sensed the danger of that club K as a late entry to dummy, and had led his club Q to the second trick, that line of play would have been impossible. If the declarer then got spades out, it would have done him no good to set up the thirteenth diamond, as there would have been no entry to dummy for using it. If he had switched plans and tried to ruff out the third club from his hand, he would not have been able to drop all the trumps. If he tried the diamond finesse, that would fail, too. In a nutshell, the knocking out of the club K on the second trick would have defeated his contract, no matter what he did.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

North's response of 3-Diamonds to South's opening 1-Diamond on this deal should cause South, on his second turn, to take what action?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, August 1.

The reign of swift-moving and exciting events leading toward exceptional progress and accomplishments is found presaged by the rule of powerful stars and is most promising to happy relationships. It should be a time for applying the exceptional and highly stimulated faculties and forces to advanced ideas in response to original, audacious and original creative urges. It may demand sudden changes, travel, renewed plans and programs.

Those whose birthday it is may have a splendid year of progress, adventure, and romance, with the expression of much exceptional talent and versatility, all to culminate in financial gain, public approbation, enhanced personal popularity with gratifying social or emotional pleasures.

A child born on this day should have great versatility with much inventive genius. Applied successfully in the chosen field, it may culminate in public recognition.

Don't Waste Perfume, a Bit Clings

By MME. QUI VIVE

They've faded into the past, those profligate days when we used to fling luxuries around. Hang onto your precious toiletries, my good friends, there's no telling when there will not be so many to choose from. A light film of the fragrant cream is precisely as effective as a heavier load. We've been lavish beyond reason. Perfumes have been used too freely by many of our darlings. A little is sweet and intriguing; an overdose does things to the nose. It wasn't meant that floretted odors should be wasted, any more than it was ever meant that beautiful fabrics should be ruined by neglect. A fastidious woman never under-values lovely things, always treats them with care.

This doesn't mean that you should buy fragrant essences, stick them away and hoard them. They'll evaporate to a certain extent unless they are closely stoppered. Keeping them in the light is a mistake. Instead of having them stand on your toilet table, tuck them away in a dark cabinet.

Now that the summer is here, try to avoid heavy perfumes; they are more suitable for velvets and furs. Get refreshing, cool scents, suggestive of spring flowers. Some of the overpowering blends are outmoded, anyway.

Famous perfumers have had a yen for giving their blends provocative if not downright nutty names which, of course, mean nothing to the cash customers. Now they come forth occasionally with labels that we can understand—lily of the valley, apple blossom, jonquil, lilac. Even rose and violet have come back, two scents that were rivals during the reign of Queen Victoria. Seems quaint, but there you are.

No matter what your choice is, pour it into an atomizer; your precious perfume will go twice as far. Spray neck and arms immediately after the bath. The warm flesh will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate, only the delicate essences will remain.

Toilet waters and eau de colognes are good buys. Costing less than the usual run of perfumes because they are diluted, one can use a freer hand with them. If you find one you like stick to it; perfume is associated with personality. Changing scents is not a good idea; the new number may fight the lingering ghost of the one you have been using.

How to Can Fruit With No Sugar

By BETSY NEWMAN

What is Mother doing about canning this year? Why, she's learning to can a new way, using syrup and honey, and some of the sugar from our preserving ration, of course.

Today's Menu.

Lamb Stew
Boiled or Steamed Rice
Green Peas Sliced Tomatoes
Raspberry Chiffon Pie or Baked
Molasses and Honey Custard
Iced or Hot Beverage

Chiffon Pie Shell.

1¼ graham crackercrust crumbs
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup butter or margarine

Blend the ingredients and press on bottom and side of 10-inch pie tin; bake in moderate over (350 degrees F.) about 10 minutes. Let cool.

Raspberry Filling.

1 pkg. raspberry flavored gelatin
1¼ cup boiling water
½ tsp salt
4 eggs
¼ cup sugar
⅓ cup corn syrup
2 tsps lemon juice
1 cup mashed fresh raspberries
¼ cup whipped cream

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, add salt. Separate eggs and beat yolks with sugar; add hot gelatin mixture slowly, beating it in as added; then add lemon juice to mashed berries and stir into gelatin. Cool until mixture begins to thicken, then beat egg whites stiff, add corn syrup to them gradually beating it in, fold in gelatin mixture and turn into prepared shell. Chill until firm. When ready to serve cover with the whipped cream.

Baked Molasses and Honey Custard.

1 Tbsp. flour
Few grains salt
⅓ cup sugar
2-3 cup molasses or honey
2 eggs
1 cup irradiated evaporated milk
¼ tsp nutmeg or mace

Mix flour, salt and sugar, add molasses, mix well with beaten eggs, then add milk and spice. Pour into custard cups and place in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until set, about 1 hour. Serves 6.

Canning Berries Without Sugar.

Sort fruit, putting perfect ones aside to can whole, the imperfect ones into preserving kettle, add very small amount of water, cover and heat to boiling point. Boil quickly until soft and most of color has been removed, then strain juice through jelly bag or fine strainer. Heat perfect berries in this juice and turn at once into hot sterilized containers, filling them to within ½ inch of top. Seal and process in hot water bath 10 minutes, or 45 minutes in a slow oven, 250 degrees F.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Pop Elias, custodian of athletic equipment at Mansfield high school, was in the office the other day, bronzed and chipper and full of more zip than he's shown in many months.

"I wouldn't trade this vacation I've had for any amount of money . . . within reason," declared Pop, who has been spending his vacation working out in the sun at Mansfield Municipal airport.

Pop, you know, is the "Man" in the "Man and Two Boys" maintenance department which has been working at the airport all summer, but he can't convince his two grandsons. "Pop, are you the man or one of the boys?" they deride him.

"But I can stand a little kidding," says Pop. "I dish enough of it out, and I guess I can take it too.

"You know, we bummed our way into town every evening from the airport, and we never had to wait long for rides. Total strangers would slam on their brakes and stop when they saw us on the highway.

"And then they'd say: 'You must be the man and two boys we read so much about'."

Pop declared he'd never met a finer, more courteous and cooperative bunch of men than he came in contact with this summer at the airport.

"The equipment we had wasn't any too good, but the mechanics out there would work on it overnight and it would always be in shape for us to go to work in the morning.

"And the Two Boys really worked, too," says Pop. "If we'd find a hole in the runways I'd tell them: 'Let's fill this thing up. If we save a life here, we're saving it for someone who'll be shooting down Japs some day. This is our way of winning the war.' And the kids would pitch in and really go to work.

"They had a small swamp out there with the water stagnant and stinking and green, and they wanted us to fill it up. But that wasn't what we were hired for, so we did that in overtime and without pay. We must have tossed a hundred loads of gravel in that swamp on our own time.

"Sure, it was a small job. But we had pride in our work, and we did a good job. And they can't kid the Man and Two Boys out of that," Pop asserted.

Westinghouse Beats Shelby

Trims Salesbook Club In Independent Game.

Westinghouse softball team, continuing diamond action in a series of independent games, romped over Shelby Salesbook 7-1 at North Lake park Wednesday evening, with Aid Geiger letting the Shelby club down with five hits.

Manager Earl Jones announced today that Westinghouse will continue play for at least six weeks, although it has already completed its league schedule.

BARNES SOFTBALLERS DEFEAT SEAMLESS TUBE

Barnes Manufacturing softball team held a 3-1 victory over Shelby Seamless Tube in an independent game today.

Shelby got its lone run in the first inning, and Barnes came back to tie the score in the fourth, and win with a two-run rally in the eighth frame.

Indians Take on Athletics

Climb To Virtual Tie For Second With Boston.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Back in a virtual tie with Boston for second place, the Cleveland Indians open a three-game series with cellar-dwelling Philadelphia at the stadium tonight.

Mel Harder's seven-hit pitching and timely single with the bases loaded in the seventh inning of yesterday's game with the Red Sox gave Cleveland a 4 to 3 triumph which lifted the Tribe to within three percentage points of Boston. Each is 12½ games behind New York.

Manager Boudreau showed he intended to make the most of a chance to gain full possession of the runner-up spot by calling on the Tribe's ace lefthander, Al Smith, to face the A's in the opener. The Athletics picked Rookie Dick Fowler.

Boston scored twice in the first frame on Johnny Pesky's single and Ted Williams' 22nd home run of the season.

Cleveland tallied one run in the third on Ray Mack's single, Williams fumbling which enabled the Redskin to reach second, and Oris Hockett's bingle to center.

Kenny Keltner opened the lucky seventh with a single, but was forced out on Buster Mills' bunt. Roy Weatherly went in to run for Mills, and was moved to second when Les Fleming got a pass. Both advanced when Oscar Judd tossed a wild pitch, and then Mack was intentionally passed to fill the bases and set up a double play.

Boston got one run in the ninth on a walk and two singles, but with two outs and two men on base, Judd lined to Harder, who caught the ball in his gloved hand to end the match.

Whirly Favored In Chicago Race

CHICAGO — (INS) — Whirlaway was expected today to go to the post in tomorrow's $25,000 Arlington Handicap at odds possibly as short as 3 to 5 in the Calumet stable star's first start at a Chicago track this season.

Trainer Ben Jones said Whirly would go whatever the weather or track condition and this assurance gave promise of another banner crowd at popular Arlington park.

The long-cherished hope of a meeting between Whirlaway and Alsab was not to be realized, for Al Sabath, owner of the three-year-old colt, indicated Alsab would not be started in the handicap.

There were eight or nine possible starters against Whirlaway, but it was thought likely his opposition would be made up of Best Seller, Reading II, Rounders, Moscow II, Daily Trouble, Staretor and Sirocco.

PLYMOUTH MEETS LOUDONVILLE CLUB

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth Locomotives and Loudonville Clippers play a twilight baseball game here this evening at 6:30. Bill Boliantz, former Mansfield and Kent State college pitcher, will be on the mound for the Locomotives with Joe Atton behind the plate. Emmer, Donnen and Buzard of Mansfield also are in the lineup.

Sunday Locomotives go to Bucyrus to meet the Army Engineers.

SOX THIRD SACKER ENIST IN NAVY

CHICAGO—(INS)—The navy will take over between the games of the White Sox-Senators doubleheader at Comiskey park Sunday when Bob Kennedy, third baseman of the Pale Hose, is sworn in as an air cadet.

SCHROEDER, WOOD NEAR NET FINALS

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y.—(INS)—An All-American final for the 53rd annual Meadow club tennis tournament—a round-robin affair this year—seemed virtually assured today.

Favored to win through to the final round were Ted Schroeder and Sidney B. Wood, veteran performer. Both are unbeaten as Wood beat Billy Talbert of Cincinnati yesterday, 6-2, 8-6, and Schroeder whipped Alejo Russell of Argentina, 6-2 and 6-0.

Minor Loops Threatened

Not Expected To Start 1943 Baseball Season.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Major league baseball clubs plan to continue operations in 1943 on about the same basis as this season, if the government permits, but minor league clubs are uncertain, despite assurances from Judge W. G. Bramham, the minor league czar.

For example, J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league, says, "if the war continues there isn't going to be any organized baseball next year."

"I recall the 'work or fight' edict in the last war which closed down baseball in most areas," he continues. "Well, that war can't compare with the seriousness of the present one. If the war continues, a lot of things will be closed, not alone baseball."

Remarks of Prexy Gardner are pertinent because he heads an A-1 league, which depends upon rail for the movement of its clubs rather than bus transportation, used largely by the lower minors.

And Eddie Mulligan, general manager of the Salt Lake Bees of the Pioneer league (Class C) says, "sure—I'd like to keep going next season, but I don't see what we're going to use for players."

In similar vein, Rollie Barnum, business manager of the Madison, Wisc., Blues—a member of the Chicago Cubs farm organization—says, "I don't think there will be much minor league baseball next year. We do all of our traveling by bus, and by next year, I doubt if we will have any tires or gas for the bus. And where are we going to get the players for another year?"

These statements are merely some of the more pessimistic obtained in a United Press survey of the nation. They represent by no means the general optimism that prevails through organized baseball, but they come as a warning that minor league ball, as presently played, may not be continued on the same basis in 1943.

This is true, the survey shows, despite assurances by Judge W. G. Bramham, czar of the minor leagues, who says, "I want to make it clear that the minor leagues are neither blue, disheartened or discouraged by present conditions."

He added that despite the loss of approximately 1,477 players by draft and retirement to take war plant jobs, there are still sufficient men to "present a good admission's worth of baseball."

Judge Bramham admitted that about 15 clubs already have gone out of existence because of war conditions.

"We'll go just as far as the government will let us," he said. "If they give us the sign, we'll have a great season ahead."

President Frank J. Shaugnessy of the International league said that the future of baseball in the minors was largely a question of transportation. He emphasized that the three double-A circuits—the International, American and Pacific were fortunate in traveling by rail, as were the Southern association and Texas league of the A-1 group.

He concluded, "when you get down into the class B, C and D leagues, where virtually all movement is made by bus, then you have a real problem."

Jake Mayer Paces B-Loop

Shoots Lowest League Score of Recent Years.

Jake Mayer yesterday paced News-Journal B-league golfers with a two-under-par 34 at Possum Run, lowest score turned in by a B-leaguer since Tony Schadek posted a 33 several years ago. Earlier this season Bill Boyle had a 35.

Mayer's round saved the second-place Tucker Furnitures from a shutout, as they dropped a 1-2 decision to Tinkey Lumber. The league leading Elks broke even with Moose 1-1 and Mansfield Printing won from Central Fruit 2-1.

Two Shutouts Scored In Loop

Two shutouts were scored in the Y. M. C. A. boys' softball league yesterday as Prospect juniors romped over Maple Lake 24 to 0, and North Lake swamped Paul's 12-0.

In the senior softball league Liberty Park defeated John Todd Park 9 to 8. Hetler hit a home run for Liberty.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—If Sammy Angott gets tagged by Ray Robinson tonight, he'll probably look around for the knockdown timekeeper before he falls. . . . According to Manager Charley Jones, the thing that kept Sammy from being counted out when he ran into Ray's right at Philadelphia a year ago was that he fell right in front of that official. . . . The noise of the hammer pounding the canvas right at his ear brought Sammy back so successfully that he almost won the scrap. . . . The crowds at Saratoga haven't been anything to write home about, but since the running hosses arrived at the same time as gas rationing and a spell of weather, attendance at the trotting track has dropped 50 per cent. . . . They expect a comeback when the Grand Circuit moves in next week

TEA FOR TWO.

When the Seattle Cricket club found competition a bit light, Publicist Syd Hardt wrote the papers as follows: "Will you invite any teams wanting games to come out to Graves field and play us? . . . Oh, yes, and tell them to bring their own sugar for the tea."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

John Cronley, Oklahoma City Oklahoman: "Such nonsense originating in Chicago's Tam O'Shanter, pro golfers striking in a war benefit tournament in refusal to aid fans by wearing numbers. Oh, well, the numbers of Tommy Armour and Joe Kirkwood have been up a long time as far as competitive golf goes."

HAL CHASE CALLED SERIOUSLY ILL

Chase, 56, had been visiting with friends in Alameda. He collapsed while on his way to take a shipyards job.

The hospital reported he still was unable to recognize anyone. He has been unconscious most of the time.

ZIVIC MATCHED

Mayer Sets New Record

Tours Coolridge Course In Just 30 Strokes.

There's no longer any question about the course record at Coolridge golf club's present lengthened layout. Joe Mayer holds the record today with an even 30.

Playing with John Scodova, Ray Malaska and Frank Jocha, Joe banged out six 3's and three 4's for his record round, and only a bogey four on the 250-yard par three second hole kept him from touring the course in the 20's.

His card showed five birdies, three pars and the one bogey for a four-under-par round. But in that company his record was good for only three skins.

Here's the new record:

Par	433	543	444—34
Mayer	343	433	334—30

Mayer's round equals the old course record of 30 scored by Nick Loris on Sept. 4, 1938, over the shorter layout, before the three short par three holes were lengthened to wood-shot distance.

Sportsmen Book Two Coon Chases

The 'coon division of the Richland County Fish and Game association will sponsor two 'coon chases Saturday night and Sunday, Aug 1-2.

The Saturday night chase at 8 o'clock will be at Oak park, five miles east of Mansfield on State Route 30. Entry fee will be $2 and prizes will be $10 for each heat and 100 per cent paid back in the finals.

Sunday's chase will be at the Sherman Beichley farm three miles west of Mansfield, off State Route 39 at 12 noon. Entry fee will be $3, with $20 paid in each heat, and $85 in the finals for a purse of $225.

Ray Robinson Aims at Kayo

Tangles With Angott In Non-Title Bout.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Ray Sugar Robinson, Harlem's dancing dynamiter, aims at a knockout tonight when he tangles for the second time with Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott at Madison Square Garden in a non-title, 10-round bout.

The business of extending his record winning streak of 121 consecutive victories has palled upon Robinson, the slender, young Harlem welterweight, who wants to garner quick lustre by belting out Angott, the toughest man he ever met, and from whom he barely won their first engagement at Philadelphia a year ago.

Robinson, victor in 189 amateur and 32 professional bouts, is favored at 2-1 to defeat Angott, the Washington, Pa., windmill, and the smart-money boys along 49th street are betting one against three that Rapid Ray scores a kayo.

Robinson is favored because of his advantages in height, reach, weight, punch, speed and youth. He will out-weigh Slammin' Sam about 142 to 138. He is favored because of the explosiveness of his concentrated barrages to body or head.

Angott is receiving heavy backing from his admirers, and Promoter Mike Jacobs expects a crowd of about 15,000 who will pay about $35,000 to witness this melee.

The Robinson supporters emphasize, however, that Ray was a lightweight in that previous engagement and that he was trying his first 10-rounder. Now, they say, Robinson is bigger and stronger as a welterweight and seasoned enough to set his own pace.

It's a heavy betting fight because neither was impressive in his last New York showing. Robinson, in May, won a disputed 10-round decision over Marty Servo of the coast guard, and Angott, also in May, retained his 135-pound crown against Allie Stolz, of Newark, N. J. on a verdict that brought protests.

Dodgers Aiming at Record

Have Chance of Winding Up Season With .700.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

FANS probably don't pay a great deal of attention to the baseball standings these days because the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers are making runaways of the major league pennant races.

The record was set by the Chicago Cubs in 1906 when they won 116 games and lost 36 for .763. They also were above .700 the next year and the Pittsburgh Pirates topped that level in 1902 and 1909. In the American league the great Yankee clubs of 1927 and 1939 and the Philadelphia Athletics of 1931 are all that have ever turned the trick.

The Dodgers added another scalp last night with a 9-2 conquest of the Chicago Cubs.

This increased Brooklyn's lead to 8½ games over the idle St. Louis Cardinals. The Yankees also were idle, but their American league margin was increased to 12½ games as the Boston Red Sox dropped a 4-3 decision to the Cleveland Indians.

Pinky Higgins drove in six runs as Detroit downed the Philadelphia Athletics 11-5 in the first game of a doubleheader, but the A's slugged their way to a 7-6 triumph in the nightcap.

* * *

The Cincinnati Reds were held to four hits by Earl Naylor and Ike Pearson and lost a 4-2 verdict to the Philadelphia Phils in a night game. Bucky Walter gave six hits in losing.

Hurlers Harry Find Spotlight In A. A.

(By Associated Press)

A couple of pitchers named Harry found themselves in the spotlight last night in a curtailed American Association program reduced to two games because of schedule alterations and the weather.

At Minneapolis, Harry Kelley pitched three hit ball to give the Millers a 6 to 2 victory over the Toledo Mudhens.

At St. Paul Harry Brecheen, the Columbus southpaw, entered the game as a relief pitcher in the 10th inning and proceeded to hit and pitch the Red Birds to a 4 to 2 victory over the Saints.

Wartime Story.

"Wings for the Eagle," a heart-pounding drama of the men and women who turn out America's planes, opens Saturday at the Ohio with Ann Sheridan, Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson at the head of the cast. The beauteous Miss Sheridan and Carson appear as a married couple who separate when the latter discovers he has wasted his money on a phony racket. The wife gets a job in an aviation factory where Morgan is working. George Tobias is also in the cast and the action was largely filmed in the Lockheed Aircraft plant.

Maisie Comedy.

Unusual Comedy.

Preston Sturgis' ingenious comedy, "Sullivan's Travels," showing at the Ritz, concerns a director of movie comedies who sallies forth in the world with only a dime in his pocket to study life in the raw so that he can direct a serious drama. Joel McCrea and Veronica Lake are teamed in the picture and the cast includes Robert Warwick, Margaret Hayes and Eric Blore. Miss Lake plays an aspiring actress who accompanies McCrea on his journey. Buck Jones in "Ghost Town Law," is the co-feature.

Romantic Musical.

Franz Schubert's early romance with a beautiful Austrian girl is pictured in Ilona Massey's starring feature, "New Wine," at the Park. Alan Curtis plays the composer and the cast includes John Qualen, Binnie Barnes, Sterling Holloway and Gilbert Emery.

The story concerns the days when Schubert fled from Austria into Hungary to evade war and chanced to meet a girl who recognized the stamp of genius in his music. Some of the composer's most beautiful works are heard in the production. "Road Agent," with Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine is the co-feature.

Special Hair-Do Required With WAAC Caps

Army regulations, girls, are going to do things to your hair You can blame it all on the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps' caps, or hats, if you will. Mary Marlin, at the left, shows you a hair-do that's pretty, but out as far as members of the WAAC are concerned. Eileen Wilmot, however, models the "military" coiffure, created by the Los Angeles Coiffure guild. Just the thing for wear by the "Wacks."

ALBANY, N. Y. — (U.P.) — The "best boys" of Elmira reformatory, numbering 823, have been recommended by reformatory officials and the New York State Parole board as available for selective service.

The army is willing to accept the boys — all first offenders— when they are released, says Dutton S. Peterson, chairman of the State Assembly's Penal Institute committee.

Peterson believes many prisoners held for minor crimes or subject to parole might better be released for military or defense duties.

BUDGET BOARD MEETS MONDAY

Organizes and Then Begins Work on Requests of Subdivisions.

The Richland county budget commission will organize Monday at the courthouse and begin work immediately on the 1943 operating budget requests submitted by the county and its subdivisions, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

Members of the commission include the county auditor, treasurer, and prosecutor. The auditor and treasurer levy and collect the county taxes.

The auditor said the commission probably will have the budget all checked by Sept. 1 so they can be returned to the subdivisions for any adjustments that are necessary. County tax rates for the year are set by the auditor on the basis of the operating needs of the subdivisions

Pop Elias, custodian of athletic equipment at Mansfield high school, was in the office the other day, bronzed and chipper and full of more zip than he's shown in many months.

"I wouldn't trade this vacation I've had for any amount of money . . . within reason," declared Pop, who has been spending his vacation working out in the sun at Mansfield Municipal airport.

Pop, you know, is the "Man" in the "Man and Two Boys" maintenance department which has been working at the airport all summer, but he can't convince his two grandsons. "Pop, are you the man or one of the boys?" they deride him.

"But I can stand a little kidding," says Pop. "I dish enough of it out, and I guess I can take it too.

"You know, we bummed our way into town every evening from the airport, and we never had to wait long for rides. Total strangers would slam on their brakes and stop when they saw us on the highway.

"And then they'd say: 'You must be the man and two boys we read so much about'."

Pop declared he'd never met a finer, more courteous and cooperative bunch of men than he came in contact with this summer at the airport.

"The equipment we had wasn't any too good, but the mechanics out there would work on it overnight and it would always be in shape for us to go to work in the morning.

"And the Two Boys really worked, too," says Pop. "If we'd find a hole in the runways I'd tell them: 'Let's fill this thing up. If we save a life here, we're saving it for someone who'll be shooting down Japs some day. This is our way of winning the war.' And the kids would pitch in and really go to work.

"They had a small swamp out there with the water stagnant and stinking and green, and they wanted us to fill it up. But that wasn't what we were hired for, so we did that in overtime and without pay. We must have tossed a hundred loads of gravel in that swamp on our own time.

"Sure, it was a small job. But we had pride in our work, and we did a good job. And they can't kid the Man and Two Boys out of that," Pop asserted.

Westinghouse Beats Shelby

Trims Salesbook Club In Independent Game.

Westinghouse softball team, continuing diamond action in a series of independent games, romped over Shelby Salesbook 7-1 at North Lake park Wednesday evening, with Aid Geiger letting the Shelby club down with five hits.

Bosko and Schaefer hit home runs for Westinghouse, and Harry Ross contributed a double to the attack.

* * *

Manager Earl Jones announced today that Westinghouse will continue play for at least six weeks, although it has already completed its league schedule.

BARNES SOFTBALLERS DEFEAT SEAMLESS TUBE

Shelby got its lone run in the first inning, and Barnes came back to tie the score in the fourth and win with a two-run rally in the eighth frame.

Indians Take on Athletics

Climb To Virtual Tie For Second With Boston.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Back in a virtual tie with Boston for second place, the Cleveland Indians open a three-game series with cellar-dwelling Philadelphia at the stadium tonight.

Mel Harder's seven-hit pitching and timely single with the bases loaded in the seventh inning of yesterday's game with the Red Sox gave Cleveland a 4 to 3 triumph which lifted the Tribe to within three percentage points of Boston. Each is 12½ games behind New York.

Manager Boudreau showed he intended to make the most of a chance to gain full possession of the runner-up spot by calling on the Tribe's ace lefthander, Al Smith, to face the A's in the opener. The Athletics picked Rookie Dick Fowler.

Harder's third victory over the Red Sox and his ninth of the season was won the hard way. . . . By coming from behind in the late sessions.

Boston scored twice in the first frame on Johnny Pesky's single and Ted Williams' 22nd home run of the season.

Cleveland tallied one run in the third on Ray Mack's single, Williams fumbling which enabled the Redskin to reach second, and Oris Hockett's bingle to center.

Kenny Keltner opened the lucky seventh with a single, but was forced out on Buster Mills' bunt. Roy Weatherly went in to run for Mills, and was moved to second when Les Fleming got a pass. Both advanced when Oscar Judd tossed a wild pitch, and then Mack was intentionally passed to fill the bases and set up a double play.

* * *

Boston got one run in the ninth on a walk and two singles, but with two outs and two men on base, Judd lined to Harder, who caught the ball in his gloved hand to end the match.

Whirly Favored In Chicago Race

CHICAGO — (INS) — Whirlaway was expected today to go to the post in tomorrow's $25,000 Arlington Handicap at odds possibly as short as 3 to 5 in the Calumet stable star's first start at a Chicago track this season.

Trainer Ben Jones said Whirly would go whatever the weather or track condition and this assurance gave promise of another banner crowd at popular Arlington park.

The long-cherished hope of a meeting between Whirlaway and Alsab was not to be realized, for Al Sabath, owner of the three-year-old colt, indicated Alsab would not be started in the handicap.

There were eight or nine possible starters against Whirlaway, but it was thought likely his opposition would be made up of Best Seller, Reading II, Rounders, Moscow II, Daily Trouble, Staretor and Sirocco.

PLYMOUTH MEETS LOUDONVILLE CLUB

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth Locomotives and Loudonville Clippers play a twilight baseball game here this evening at 6:30. Bill Boliantz, former Mansfield and Kent State college pitcher, will be on the mound for the Locomotives with Joe Atton behind the plate. Emmer, Donnen and Buzard of Mansfield also are in the lineup.

Sunday Locomotives go to Bucyrus to meet the Army Engineers.

SOX THIRD SACKER ENIST IN NAVY

CHICAGO—(INS)—The navy will take over between the games of the White Sox-Senators doubleheader at Comiskey park Sunday when Bob Kennedy, third baseman of the Pale Hose, is sworn in as an air cadet.

SCHROEDER, WOOD NEAR NET FINALS

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y.—(AP)—An All-American final for the 53rd annual Meadow club tennis tournament—a round-robin affair this year—seemed virtually assured today.

Favored to win through to the final round were Ted Schroeder and Sidney B. Wood, veteran performer. Both are unbeaten as Wood beat Billy Talbert of Cincinnati yesterday, 6-2, 8-6, and Schroeder whipped Alejo Russell of Argentina, 6-2 and 6-0.

Minor Loops Threatened

Not Expected To Start 1943 Baseball Season.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Major league baseball clubs plan to continue operations in 1943 on about the same basis as this season, if the government permits, but minor league clubs are uncertain, despite assurances from Judge W. C. Bramham, the minor league czar.

For example, J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league, says, "if the war continues there isn't going to be any organized baseball next year."

"I recall the 'work or fight' edict in the last war which closed down baseball in most areas," he continues. "Well, that war can't compare with the seriousness of the present one. If the war continues, a lot of things will be closed, not alone baseball."

* * *

Remarks of Prexy Gardner are pertinent because he heads an A-1 league, which depends upon rail for the movement of its clubs rather than bus transportation, used largely by the lower minors.

And Eddie Mulligan, general manager of the Salt Lake Bees of the Pioneer league (Class C) says, "sure—I'd like to keep going next season, but I don't see what we're going to use for players."

In similar vein, Rollie Barnum, business manager of the Madison, Wisc., Blues—a member of the Chicago Cubs farm organization—says, "I don't think there will be much minor league baseball next year. We do all of our traveling by bus, and by next year, I doubt if we will have any tires or gas for the bus. And where are we going to get the players for another year?"

These statements are merely some of the more pessimistic obtained in a United Press survey of the nation. They represent by no means the general optimism that prevails through organized baseball, but they come as a warning that minor league ball, as presently played, may not be continued on the same basis in 1943.

This is true, the survey shows, despite assurances by Judge W. G. Bramham, czar of the minor leagues, who says, "I want to make it clear that the minor leagues are neither blue, disheartened or discouraged by present conditions."

He added that despite the loss of approximately 1,477 players by draft and retirement to take war plant jobs, there are still sufficient men to "present a good admission's worth of baseball."

Judge Bramham admitted that about 15 clubs already have gone out of existence because of war conditions.

"We'll go just as far as the government will let us," he said. "If they give us the sign, we'll have a great season ahead."

President Frank J. Shaugnessy of the International league said that the future of baseball in the minors was largely a question of transportation. He emphasized that the three double-A circuits—the International, American and Pacific were fortunate in traveling by rail, as were the Southern association and Texas league of the A-1 group.

He concluded, "when you get down into the class B, C and D leagues, where virtually all movement is made by bus, then you have a real problem."

Jake Mayer Paces B-Loop

Shoots Lowest League Score of Recent Years.

Jake Mayer yesterday paced News-Journal B-league golfers with a two-under-par 34 at Possum Run, lowest score turned in by a B-leaguer since Tony Schadek posted a 33 several years ago. Earlier this season Bill Boyle had a 35.

Mayer's round saved the second-place Tucker Furnitures from a shutout, as they dropped a 1-2 decision to Tinkey Lumber. The league leading Elks broke even with Moose 1-1 and Mansfield Printing won from Central Fruit 2-1.

Eagles scored the only decisive win, blanking Bissman's 5-0.

Two Shutouts Scored In Loop

Two shutouts were scored in the Y. M. C. A. boys' softball league yesterday as Prospect juniors romped over Maple Lake 24 to 0, and North Lake swamped Paul's 12-0.

Stuckey, hurling for Prospect, let Maple Lake down with only one hit, while Musille, on the mound for North Lake, kept six hits scattered in registering his shutout.

* * *

In the senior softball league Liberty Park defeated John Todd Park 9 to 8. Hetler hit a home run for Liberty.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—If Sammy Angott gets tagged by Ray Robinson tonight, he'll probably look around for the knockdown timekeeper before he falls. . . . According to Manager Charley Jones, the thing that kept Sammy from being counted out when he ran into Ray's right at Philadelphia a year ago was that he fell right in front of that official. . . . The noise of the hammer pounding the canvas right at his ear brought Sammy back so successfully that he almost won the scrap . . . The crowds at Saratoga haven't been anything to write home about, but since the running hosses arrived at the same time as gas rationing and a spell of weather, attendance at the trotting track has dropped 50 per cent. . . . They expect a comeback when the Grand Circuit moves in next week.

TEA FOR TWO.

When the Seattle Cricket club found competition a bit light, Publicist Syd Hardt wrote the papers as follows: "Will you invite any teams wanting games to come out to Graves field and play us? . . . Oh, yes, and tell them to bring their own sugar for the tea."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

John Cronley, Oklahoma City Oklahoman: "Such nonsense originating in Chicago's Tam O'Shanter, pro golfers striking in a war benefit tournament in refusal to aid fans by wearing numbers. Oh, well, the numbers of Tommy Armour and Joe Kirkwood have been up a long time as far as competitive golf goes."

HAL CHASE CALLED SERIOUSLY ILL

Chase, 56, had been visiting with friends in Alameda. He collapsed while on his way to take a shipyards job.

The hospital reported he still was unable to recognize anyone. He has been unconscious most of the time.

ZIVIC MATCHED

Mayer Sets New Record

Tours Coolridge Course In Just 30 Strokes.

There's no longer any question about the course record at Coolridge golf club's present lengthened layout. Joe Mayer holds the record today with an even 30.

Playing with John Scodova, Ray Malaska and Frank Jocha, Joe banged out six 3's and three 4's for his record round, and only a bogey four on the 250-yard par three second hole kept him from touring the course in the 20's.

His card showed five birdies, three pars and the one bogey for a four-under-par round. But in that company his record was good for only three skins.

Here's the new record:

Par	433	543	444—34
Mayer	343	433	334—30

Mayer's round equals the old course record of 30 scored by Nick Loris on Sept. 4, 1938, over the shorter layout, before the three short par three holes were lengthened to wood-shot distance.

Sportsmen Book Two Coon Chases

The 'coon division of the Richland County Fish and Game association will sponsor two 'coon chases Saturday night and Sunday, Aug. 1-2.

The Saturday night chase at 8 o'clock will be at Oak park, five miles east of Mansfield on State Route 30. Entry fee will be $2 and prizes will be $10 for each heat and 100 per cent paid back in the finals.

Sunday's chase will be at the Sherman Beichley farm three miles west of Mansfield, off State Route 39 at 12 noon. Entry fee will be $3, with $20 paid in each heat, and $85 in the finals for a purse of $225

ZANESVILLE TAKES EXTRA INNING TILT

CANTON—(AP)—Zanesville defeated Canton 3 to 0 in a 12-inning Mid-Atlantic league game last night while Erie decisioned Dayton 3 to 2 in a 10-inning contest.

Zanesville scored its three markers in the 12th on two hits, two errors and two stolen bases.

TRAVELERS PLAY WILLARD TONIGHT

Mansfield Travelers and Willard Veterans of Foreign Wars meet in the rubber game of a three-game series this evening at 6:30 at the Fairground.

The Mansfield ball club won the first game at Willard, and V. F. W. turned the tables in a return tilt there earlier this week.

Ray Robinson Aims at Kayo

Tangles With Angott In Non-Title Bout.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Ray Sugar Robinson, Harlem's dancing dynamiter, aims at a knockout tonight when he tangles for the second time with Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott at Madison Square Garden in a non-title, 10-round bout.

The business of extending his record winning streak of 121 consecutive victories has palled upon Robinson, the slender, young Harlem welterweight, who wants to garner quick lustre by belting out Angott, the toughest man he ever met, and from whom he barely won their first engagement at Philadelphia a year ago.

Robinson, victor in 189 amateur and 32 professional bouts, is favored at 2-1 to defeat Angott, the Washington, Pa., windmill, and the smart-money boys along 49th street are betting one against three that Rapid Ray scores a kayo.

Robinson is favored because of his advantages in height, reach, weight, punch, speed and youth. He will out-weigh Slammin' Sam about 142 to 138. He is favored because of the explosiveness of his concentrated barrages to body or head.

Angott is receiving heavy backing from his admirers, and Promoter Mike Jacobs expects a crowd of about 15,000 who will pay about $35,000 to witness this melee.

In their first meeting in July, 1941, Robinson won a close decision after a thundering battle in which he floored Angott twice in the second round, but Angott rose from the canvas and carried the fight against tiring Robinson in the closing rounds.

The Robinson supporters emphasize, however, that Ray was a lightweight in that previous engagement and that he was trying his first 10-rounder. Now, they say, Robinson is bigger and stronger as a welterweight and seasoned enough to set his own pace.

* * *

It's a heavy betting fight because neither was impressive in his last New York showing. Robinson, in May, won a disputed 10-round decision over Marty Servo of the coast guard, and Angott, also in May, retained his 135-pound crown against Allie Stolz, of Newark, N. J. on a verdict that brought protests.

Dodgers Aiming at Record

Have Chance of Winding Up Season With .700.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

FANS probably don't pay a great deal of attention to the baseball standings these days because the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers are making runaways of the major league pennant races.

The record was set by the Chicago Cubs in 1906 when they won 116 games and lost 36 for .763. They also were above .700 the next year and the Pittsburgh Pirates topped that level in 1902 and 1909. In the American league the great Yankee clubs of 1927 and 1939 and the Philadelphia Athletics of 1931 are all that have ever turned the trick.

The Dodgers added another scalp last night with a 9-2 conquest of the Chicago Cubs.

This increased Brooklyn's lead to 8½ games over the idle St. Louis Cardinals. The Yankees also were idle, but their American league margin was increased to 12½ games as the Boston Red Sox dropped a 4-3 decision to the Cleveland Indians.

Pinky Higgins drove in six runs as Detroit downed the Philadelphia Athletics 11-5 in the first game of a doubleheader, but the A's slugged their way to a 7-6 triumph in the nightcap.

* * *

The Cincinnati Reds were held to four hits by Earl Naylor and Ike Pearson and lost a 4-2 verdict to the Philadelphia Phils in a night game. Bucky Walter gave six hits in losing.

Hurlers Harry Find Spotlight In A. A.

(By Associated Press)

A couple of pitchers named Harry found themselves in the spotlight last night in a curtailed American Association program reduced to two games because of schedule alterations and the weather.

At Minneapolis, Harry Kelley pitched three hit ball to give the Millers a 6 to 2 victory over the Toledo Mudhens.

At St. Paul Harry Brecheen, the Columbus southpaw, entered the game as a relief pitcher in the 10th inning and proceeded to hit and pitch the Red Birds to a 4 to 2 victory over the Saints.

Weather at Milwaukee prevented a double header between the Brewers and Indianapolis.

THEATERS

Wartime Story.

"Wings for the Eagle," a heart-pounding drama of the men and women who turn out America's planes, opens Saturday at the Ohio with Ann Sheridan, Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson at the head of the cast. The beauteous Miss Sheridan and Carson appear as a married couple who separate when the latter discovers he has wasted his money on a phony racket. The wife gets a job in an aviation factory where Morgan is working. George Tobias is also in the cast and the action was largely filmed in the Lockheed Aircraft plant.

Maisie Comedy.

Ann Sothern continues her adventures as Maisie, the showgirl, in "Maisie Gets Her Man," opening Saturday at the Ohio. Red Skelton, former Mansfielder, appears opposite the blond star, a former Zeigfeld girl, and the supporting cast includes Allen Jenkins, Donald Meek, Fritz Feld and Rags Ragland. In this new "Maisie" episode, Miss Sothern emerges as a knife-thrower's assistant who becomes mixed up in all kinds of trouble once she joins up with Skelton as a vaudevillian. "Pacific Rendezvous," with Jean Rogers and Lee Bowman is the second attraction.

Unusual Comedy.

Preston Sturgis' ingenious comedy, "Sullivan's Travels," showing at the Ritz, concerns a director of movie comedies who sallies forth in the world with only a dime in his pocket to study life in the raw so that he can direct a serious drama. Joel McCrea and Veronica Lake are teamed in the picture and the cast includes Robert Warwick, Margaret Hayes and Eric Blore. Miss Lake plays an aspiring actress who accompanies McCrea on his journey. Buck Jones in "Ghost Town Law," is the co-feature.

Romantic Musical.

Franz Schubert's early romance with a beautiful Austrian girl is pictured in Ilona Massey's starring feature, "New Wine," at the Park. Alan Curtis plays the composer and the cast includes John Qualen, Binnie Barnes, Sterling Holloway and Gilbert Emery.

The story concerns the days when Schubert fled from Austria into Hungary to evade war and chanced to meet a girl who recognized the stamp of genius in his music. Some of the composer's most beautiful works are heard in the production. "Road Agent," with Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine is the co-feature.

Special Hair-Do Required With WAAC Caps

Army regulations, girls, are going to do things to your hair You can blame it all on the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps' caps, or hats, if you will. Mary Marlin, at the left, shows you a hair-do that's pretty, but out as far as members of the WAAC are concerned. Eileen Wilmot, however, models the "military" coiffure, created by the Los Angeles Coiffure guild. Just the thing for wear by the "Wacks."

ALBANY, N. Y. — (U.P.) — The "best boys" of Elmira reformatory, numbering 823, have been recommended by reformatory officials and the New York State Parole board as available for selective service.

The army is willing to accept the boys — all first offenders— when they are released, says Dutton S. Peterson, chairman of the State Assembly's Penal Institute committee.

Peterson believes many prisoners held for minor crimes or subject to parole might better be released for military or defense duties.

BUDGET BOARD MEETS MONDAY

Organizes and Then Begins Work on Requests of Subdivisions.

The Richland county budget commission will organize Monday at the courthouse and begin work immediately on the 1943 operating budget requests submitted by the county and its subdivisions, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

Members of the commission include the county auditor, treasurer, and prosecutor. The auditor and treasurer levy and collect the county taxes.

The auditor said the commission probably will have the budget all checked by Sept. 1 so they can be returned to the subdivisions for any adjustments that are necessary. County tax rates for the year are set by the auditor on the basis of the operating needs of the subdivisions.

STOCK MARKET HOLDS STEADY DURING TRADE

Westinghouse Among Issues Keeping Feet on Ground In Transactions.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market just about kept its feet on the ground in today's transactions.

Unchanged to up fractions were Santa Fe, Air Reduction, General Motors, Chrysler, Du Pont, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Woolworth, U. S. Rubber preferred and Westinghouse.

Those watching merchandising activties for market clues scanned the Dun & Bradstreet survey which placed this week's retail spending for the country as a whole at 4 to 7 per cent under the comparable period a year ago.

Notice was taken of the federal reserve summary which, on the other hand, estimated the nation's depatrment store sales for the week ended July 25 at 5 per cent above the same 1941 week. The year-to-year increase in the preceding week also was 5 per cent.

BATTLE TESTED PLANES AID IN AIR TRAINING

Play Important Factor In Creating Hard-Hitting U. S. Air Force.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Virtually all types of American combat planes have been tried in battle with satisfactory results, high-ranking air force officials revealed today.

None of the existing models are even near obsolescence, one authority said.

All bomber types have seen battle action and all but two of current fighter models now in production have been tested in combat. That has been an important factor in whipping the army air forces into the most potent, best trained and best equipped air fighting army in the world.

The swift pace at which the army's air forces are being prepared for the vast operations ahead was impressed upon members of the aviation writers' association during their annual convention here recently.

They were warned against overemphasizing the importance of dive-bombers. Dive-bombing, they were told, was effective only when air superiority has been obtained. The small crews carried by such craft do not permit adequate defense of these planes and they are vulnerable to anti-aircraft fire, but they have a great worth as support for ground forces, it was said.

Officials said the program for training flying crews is on schedule despite a series of orders in the last six months calling for expansion of the air forces.

Furthermore, they pointed out, the training courses are subject to constant revision. Suggestions brought back by American fliers who have seen actual combat service frequently are incorporated.

Authorities said the training accident rate is larger than they would like to see it, but, considering the large number of men now under instruction, is "remarkably low." The fatality rate per 1,000 hours flown is lower now than it was in 1938, they said.

Two major changes in policy have made possible the maintenance of training schedules. First was the reduction—from one year to a little over 40 weeks—in the length of time required to turn out combat fliers. The other was relaxation of educational requirements. Men are now chosen on the basis of various intelligence and psychological tests, irrespective of previous college education.

WAGES BOOSTED

WOOSTER —(INS)— Nine hundred employes of the Ohio Boxboard company at Rittman, received wage increases ranging from 4 to 6 cents an hour, according to a contract signed by company and union officials.

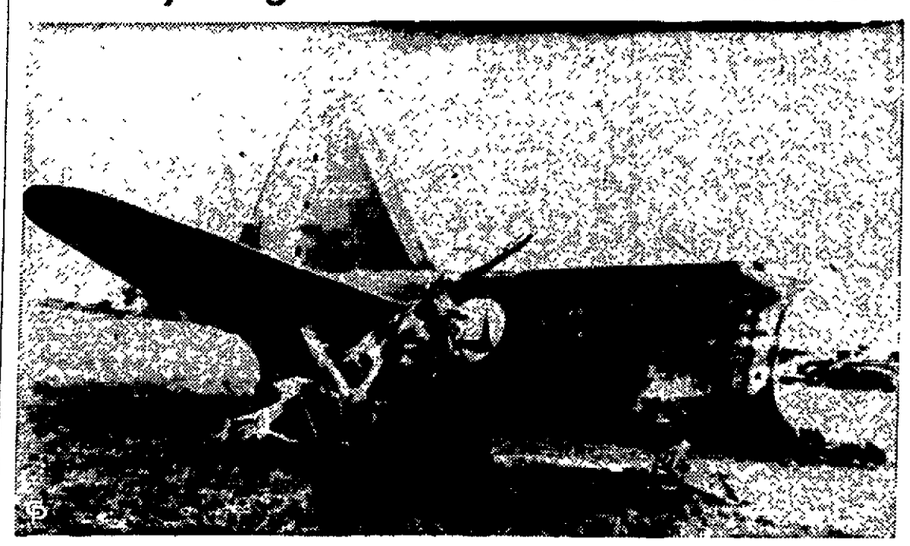
Army Cargo Plane Crash That Killed Ten



This tail assembly of the U. S. Army cargo plane which crashed, killing all ten passengers, shortly after taking off from Minneapolis, Minn., was the only section of the plane not consumed by fire. It was believed that jammed controls caused the crash. The plane, a converted Boeing airliner, was being operated by a private airline under the army ferry command.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Executive Board To Meet—The Mansfield Community Fund executive board will meet Monday at 4 p. m. at the Fund headquarters for the regular August meeting.

Cars Collide—Paul F. Johnson, 15½ North Mulberry street, was arrested yesterday when his auto collided with one driven by Mrs. George Riel, 162 Gibson avenue, on Park avenue west. Slight damage resulted to both cars.

Back to Patrol—Traffic Patrolman Robert Robnolte returned to street duty today after a week's assignment in the police file and record office, City Hall, during the vacation of Mrs Helen McIntyre.

Hold Reunion Saturday — The Hopewell, Maple Grove, and Valley Hall school reunion will be held Saturday at the Pleasant Valley church, according to Lucy Palmer, secretary of the reunion association. There will be a basket dinner.

Parents of Daughter — Word was received here today of the birth of a daughter yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Fair, of Galion. Mrs. Fair is the former Margaret Mosey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Mosey of 590 Park avenue west.

Tax Receipts Lag—Real estate tax collections in Richland county continued low today with total receipts so far amounting to $253,094, less than half the charge for the half-year period. Collections yesterday amounted to $9,528. Tax books will close Aug. 20.

Speeder Held—Robert Snavely, Bellville, was arrested late yesterday on the charge of speeding 60 miles an hour on South Main street. He will appear in traffic court Wednesday.

Change Reunion Place—The annual reunion of the 37th Division Veterans' association, which had been scheduled for the Labor day week-end in Springfield, will be held in Columbus instead, A. L. Allen, member of the association's executive committee, said today. The reunion date will be unchanged, but the shift to Columbus was made necessary by inadequate hotel facilities in Springfield, Allen said.

Drivers Cited—Charles A. Dille, jr., 47 Western avenue, and Robert L. Johnson, 18 Small avenue, were arrested last night by Traffic Patrolman Robert Garver, charged with racing 50 miles an hour on West Fourth street. They will appear in traffic court Aug. 10. According to Garver, the two drivers narrowly escaped injury when their autos came together at the Sycamore street intersection.

DON'T WANT 'EM

Customers Just Won't Call For Watches, He Reports.

PAINESVILLE — (U.P.) — Paul Meredith, a jeweler and watch repairman, didn't realize it was so difficult to quit business.

Meredith, who enteerd the U. S. navy today, has been appealing to customers for five weeks to call for watches. But 60 of the timepieces were unclaimed. He left them with his wife hoping that the owners would call for them.

HEADS MISSION

General Named In Shift of Australian Emissaries.

CANBERRA, Australia —(AP)— Prime Minister John Curtin announced today that Lieutenant General Vernon Sturdee, chief of the Australian general staff, is going to Washington to head the Australian military mission there.

Lieutenant General E. K. Smart, now head of the mission in Washington, is being transferred to London to take a similar position there.

JAPS SALVAGE FORTY VESSELS

Wrecked Warships, Cargo Craft Repaired at Hongkong.

CHUNGKING —(INS)— The Japanese are reported to have salvaged forty ships damaged and wrecked in the harbor of Hongkong during the seige of the crown colony, a Chinese military spokesman declared today. The salvaged vessels, including warships and cargo boats, are being repaired for service, he said.

As the Japanese armies sweep through north China villages, Nipponese agents are following in their wake rounding up scrap metal and seizing wheat crops, the spokesman said.

FOR BLACKOUTS

General Electric Develops Street Illumination To Fool Foe.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. —(AP)— General Electric company engineers announced today pertection of a "blackout" street light that sheds light equal to about one-sixtieth of the illumination of a full moon.

A. F. Dickerson, head of the General elect ric light division, said the lights will be "completely invisible" to enemy fliers, and will be "just enough, no more, to keep a person on his howeward path."

PURSUES FISH, DROWNS

DELAWARE — (U.P.) — A fish snapped the line of Glenn R. Heneley, 28, and he waded out into a quarry to retrive the fish and plug yesterday. He drowned in the deep water.

TEACHER 'BIDS' HIT SCHOOLS

Rural Situation Becomes More Acute; Instructors Leave For Higher Pay Jobs.

There are at least four more vacancies to fill at Butler, one at Lucas, and two at Shelby and others are expected to show up before school opens, the county superintendent said. Most of the Butler teachers resigned.

The draft and higher pay offered in war industries have drawn heavily on the teacher supply and left a much greater number of vacancies than usual. Athletic coaches and industrial arts teachers are the hardest to find, according to Robinson.

Although the Mansfield schools have had more than the average number of vacancies, Supt. W. L. Miller said he has had little difficulty finding replacements. The number of applicants has dropped off, however, he said.

Hired recently to teach at Butler were Mrs. Berlyn McCready of Mansfield and Miss Mildred Clark of South Boulevards. They will teach in the elementary school.
